OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Comparing residents of the Oklahoma City area to military draftees, a federal judge refused Thursday to halt the sonic boom test program here.

U.S. Dist. Judge Stephen Chandler said that while the flights and their resulting sonic booms were intended primarily to test the feasibility of commercial faster-than-sound aircraft, there also were other reasons for the program.

They include, he said, defense of this country against foreign nations.

Baptists Dilute Rights Stand

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Southern Baptists voted Thursday to leave racial problems to the local churches, rejecting a proposed stand approving integration in their churches.

A watered-down substitute for the stronger policy statement won approval on a written ballot after lengthy debate.

The approved statement urges the 104-million members of the Southern Baptist Convention, "to earnestly pray and work that a Christian solution may be found in all racial relationships facing the world today."

Court Backs Longshoremen

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Federal appeals court said Thursday longshoremen don't have to mount platforms "to voice" their moral revulsion against Castro and upheld the union's refusal to work ships blacklisted for trading with Communist Cuba.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said the International Longshoremen's Association hadn't violated labor laws by its action.

The 2-1 decision is a landmark case in suits dealing with unions' patriotic actions. The case was argued in the appeals court 20 days ago.

Spitting Cost Salesman $200

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jurors decided Thursday that a young salesman who admitted he spat on Adlai E. Stevenson was guilty of aggravated assault on a policeman. They fixed a $200 fine as his punishment.

Robert E. Hatfield, 22, the defendant, told a reporter immediately after the verdict: "I am innocent of the charges."

Garland Hooted In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Talking of retirement after being hooted in Melbourne for a subpar performance, Judy Garland arrived Thursday night and hurried off to a hotel, slipping in by a side door.

Sydney newspapers frontpaged the story of her hectic departure earlier in the day from Melbourne, where she was hooted protesting aboard the plane for Sydney.

The singing star was heard to cry, "no, no" as American actor Mark Herron and three airport officials pulled her across the field toward the waiting airplane.

7 Die, 6 Hurt In Shooting

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — A carpenter with a shotgun killed seven persons, including himself, and wounded six others in a bloody foray through the streets of this tourist city Wednesday night.

Police Commissioner Nigel Morris said authorities did not establish a motive for the acts of Reuben Rolle, 30, "but the first person he shot was his wife."

Stock Market Mixed Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — Excitement about new mineral finds boosted some stocks to large gains but the over-all stock market ended mixed Thursday following a moderately early rise. The result was an increase in volume to 5.37 million shares from 4.79 million Wednesday.

The Dow Jones Industrial average ended the day with a small loss of 31 at 819.80.

Non-Candidate Scranton Gets Washington Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania was briefed on world events by administration officials Thursday but said it didn't change his mind about anything.

Scranton still insisted he is not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination although he accepted President Johnson's offer to brief all potential candidates because "I have tremendous intellectual curiosity about this."

He said the American people are not being deprived by the Johnson administration on any information on world affairs that they should know. "Generally the people are very well informed," he said.

Scranton called on President

Johnson after the briefing and said he was reassured the administration will press for approval of the $228 million asked to aid the depressed Appalachian area.

Scranton told newsmen Johnson also assured him that amendments satisfactory to the governor will receive the President's full-hearted support.

Scranton is particularly interested in $10 million for use in coal mining areas. Johnson has announced his support of the $10 million item, but Scranton said the actual amendments to carry it out have not yet been offered.

Scranton said he still considers himself free to criticize the administration on foreign policy although since he is not a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination it won't be in a political vein.

Scranton told newsmen he had been "very disappointed and upset" in 1961 with administration decisions concerning Laos and added the situation in South Viet Nam is "very difficult indeed."

The briefing, and White House call climaxed a round of Washington meetings for Scranton who earlier voiced overwhelming support — but suggested some major amendments — for Johnson's $228-million program to aid Appalachia.

He told the House Public Works Committee that American society "is shamed and weakened" by pockets of poverty but "we have within our society the power to do something about it."

He recommended an additional $10 million to aid coal mining areas and urged Pennsylvania members of Congress at a congressional breakfast to "get behind this effort."

Adlai Vows U.S. Will Defend Southeast Asia From Reds

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson declared Thursday the United States will defend the countries of Southeast Asia from armed Communist aggression as long as they ask U.S. help to preserve their freedom.

The chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations made the statement in a speech to the U.N. Security Council on U.S. policy in Southeast Asia approved in advance by President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Crisis More Critical
Stevenson said that the long Southeast Asian crisis had taken a turn for the worse.

"My government takes a very grave view of these events. Those who are responsible have set foot upon an exceedingly dangerous path," he said.

Soviet delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko told the council that Stevenson's speech was an exercise in stupidity and suitable only for those who tell "stories to little children and village idiots."

U.S. Planes Now Flying Over Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mounting troubles in Southeast Asia drew increasing concern in official Washington on Thursday while the State Department disclosed U.S. reconnaissance planes are operating over Red-beset Laos.

The announcement said the planes are operating over the contested Plain des Jarres area at the request of Premier Souvanna Phouma who is trying to hold together his neutralist government under severe Communist armed pressure.

The State Department said the planes are unarmed and are seeking information on Communist concentrations and movements. Neither the State nor the Defense departments would say what kinds of planes are in use, what the frequency of the flights is or whether any ground fire has been encountered.

Obviously angered, the U.S. delegate charged Fedorenko with attempting to "belittle what I had to say." And he warned: "Let me advise him not to take my speech too lightly."

Hits 'Overthrow'
Stevenson said Soviet policy explicitly supports overthrow of national governments and newly independent states and their replacement by Communist regimes.

"That is precisely what the Communists are trying to do in Southeast Asia," Stevenson asserted. "We will support peoples who resist, and that is precisely what we are trying to do in South Viet Nam."

Stevenson's speech dealing with Laos, Viet Nam and Cambodia came amid rapid fire developments affecting that explosive part of the world.

These included announcement of British and French support of a call by neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos for reconvening the 14-nation Geneva conference to deal with the Laotian crisis.

Neutralist forces appeared headed for more defeats at the hands of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

The crisis revived talk in Washington of military strikes against North Viet Nam. U.S. policy makers regard that Communist nation as the source of Red attacks in Laos and South Viet Nam.

No Maneuvers
State Department officials saw no prospect of maneuvers by the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Thailand as a deterrent to Red forces in Laos. The council was considering specific charges by Cambodia of aggression against the United States and South Viet Nam in border incidents.

Neutralists Fall Before Red Guns

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Government authorities feared Thursday that Vang Vieng, a highway center only 60 miles north of Vientiane, will be the next big target of the Red drive launched Saturday on the Plain des Jarres.

Old defense lines were broken. Gen. Kong Le's neutralist army, hammered into retreat, evidently is, at least temporarily, no longer an effective military force.

Canadian and Indian representatives of the three-nation control commission flew to Vang Vieng at the request of Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma to check.

Representatives of Communist Poland, who round out the watchdog agency, are boycotting such missions on the ground that they are not approved by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao faction of Souvanna's coalition government.

Pathet Lao troops are staging the offensive. They are reported to be supported by units from Communist North Viet Nam.

(In Washington, the State Department said Thursday unarmed U.S. jet planes are flying reconnaissance missions over "le Plaine des Jarres area to get information on the dispositions of Communist forces."

It said the reconnaissance was undertaken at the request of Souvanna's government.)

Vang Vieng is in a valley 50 miles southwest of the Plain des Jarres. Military sources believed Kong Le, last reported to have regrouped remnants of four battalions at the hilltop village of Ban Na, may try to make a fighting withdrawal to Vang Vieng.

A town of 10,000, it has a neutralist garrison estimated at three battalions—perhaps 1,200 men—commanded by Gen. Khammou Thongpanh.

The neutralist army—totaling only about 8,000 men at best—has been badly singed in a brushfire war that has drawn world attention back to old conflicts within this Southeast Asian kingdom.

Lady Bird 'Worried' About Poor Tenants

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson says she's pleased some Republicans are concerned over poverty among tenants on her land in Alabama — because "I've been worried about these families a long time."

And if there had been an antipoverty program 30 years ago, perhaps neither she nor the Republicans would have this worry now, she added.

The First Lady thus made her first direct reply to GOP

Reps. David T. Martin of Nebraska and M. G. Snyder of Kentucky who visited her property and returned to Washington to report they found "deplorable poverty" among tenants and sharecroppers there.

The two congressmen implied in a statement that Mrs. Johnson is a callous landlord and suggested President Johnson should "put your own house in order" before pushing his antipoverty bill—a measure which both men oppose.

In a speech prepared for a convention of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Johnson said Thursday she's glad "some people were suddenly worried."

"If there had been a poverty bill 30 years ago, those former cotton farmers would have been returned to a new skill rather than remaining on an economy that time has passed by," she said.

Her speech climaxed a day in which she took "a woman's look" at efforts being made in eastern Kentucky to fight poverty.

Mrs. Johnson made her way by mountain roads to the isolated one-room schoolhouse in Lick Branch, where she ate 10-cent surplus food hot lunch with the 25 pupils and threw a switch bringing electricity to the little school for the first time.

"If Lyndon is turning out the lights at the White House," she commented in her federation speech, "you can be sure we are turning them on in places like Lick Branch."

Cadet Ahead In Academy Legal Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army and a West Point cadet were locked in a legal battle Thursday over the cadet's expulsion for "quibbling."

So far the cadet is winning, but a final decision is yet to come.

Secretary of the Army Stephen Ailes, threatened with contempt of court action, ordered West Point officials to reinstate Cadet John H. Dunnam, 21, effective as of 10 a.m. Thursday.

That was the deadline set by U.S. Dist. Judge Edward Curran at a hearing on a temporary injunction against the cadet's ouster.

Curran is expected to rule Monday on whether to make the injunction permanent.

Dunnam of Anaheim, Calif., was due to graduate in June when he was expelled for deliberately deceiving another person, which is the Army's definition of "quibbling."

The Army said Dunnam misled academy officials by leaving the infirmary and going to his quarters long enough to get credit for serving confinement for a previous minor infraction. He was in the infirmary recovering from an illness and said he wanted to go to his quarters to get some books.

Sit-Ins Sit Out On Capitol Steps

HARRISBURG (AP) — A doctored Negro civil rights demonstrators Thursday night began a sit-in on the State Capitol steps vowing to remain "until somebody in this Capitol gives us a public hearing on police brutality in Chester."

Stanley Branche, leader of a group of Chester demonstrators who earlier numbered 30 persons, expressed "deep disappointment" after the Human Relations Commission decided it lacked jurisdiction in investigating alleged police brutality.

"If they turn their backs on the Negro, I am calling for a demonstration like they never saw at this Capitol," he added. "I will call for any and all freedom loving persons to sit-in, wait-in, lie-in, and whatever is there, until we get a hearing with state policemen and beating victims giving testimony under oath and resulting in a conclusion with any punishments necessary."

Branche also said: "Everybody from the governor on down knows the police beat those people."

Branche claims that 200 Negro demonstrators were beaten in a racial incident at Chester April 24.

William Keisling, administrative assistant to Gov. Scranton, who was out of town on a two-day trip, repeatedly told Branche that the administration was conducting its own investigation, with the state police detective bureau handling the interviews.

He said a report is expected next week.

Col. E. Wilson Purdy, state police commissioner, told The Associated Press that the investigation "so far indicates that the complaints are unfounded."

Elliott Shirk, executive director of the Human Relations Commission, came out to the Capitol steps to explain the commission's position to Branche and his followers.

He said eight of the 10 commission members, contacted by telephone, agreed unanimously that the agency could take no action.

School Prayers Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the American Legion and a rabbi who went to school in pre-Nazi Germany differed widely Thursday on the moral value of public school prayers.

In testimony presented to the House Judiciary Committee, Daniel J. O'Connor of the American Legion, favored a constitutional amendment to permit public school religious exercises, while Rabbi Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, opposed it.

"The committee has been holding hearings since April 22 on 146 resolutions calling for an amendment designed to overturn the Supreme Court's decisions banning required prayers and Bible reading in the schools."

O'Connor, who heads the legion's National Americanism Commission, said, in prepared testimony, the decisions serve to "detract from, if not completely prevent, the inculcation of moral and spiritual values in our American youth."

Prinz said that in Germany during the decades before Hitler came to power daily religious exercises were required in all public schools.

E. K. Driebe Heads Bridge Commission

STROUDSBURG — Edward K. Driebe, a Stroudsburg businessman, was elected chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission last night at a commission meeting in Morristown.

Driebe, who is president of the Pocono Produce on N. Fifth St., was appointed to the commission Oct. 18, 1963 by Gov. William W. Scranton.

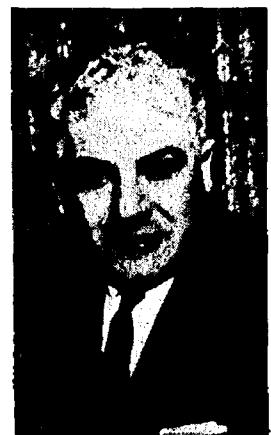

He will serve in the post for one year and then relinquish the chairmanship to a New Jersey resident according to the commission's yearly rotation.

Other officers elected last night were Chester L. Errico of Stockton, N.J., vice chairman, and James C. Skillman, mayor of New Hope, secretary-treasurer.

Driebe has taken an active interest in civic affairs since he moved to Stroudsburg in 1940.

He is past president of the Lions Club, vice chairman of the Stroudsburg Planning Commission, co-chairman of the Pocono Mountain Chamber of Commerce's planning committee. He is also a member of the Knights of Columbus and Elks Club.

In addition to serving as president of the produce firm, Driebe is president of Zela, Inc., a real estate holding corporation, and president of Ed-Mar, Inc., real estate developers.

Driebe is married and lives with his wife, Mary and daughter, Marianne at 510 Thomas St., Stroudsburg. Another daughter, Rosemary works for the New York Life Insurance Co. in New York City.

Presbyterians Elect Negro

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The United Presbyterian Church U.S.A. Thursday elected the first Negro moderator in its history — the Rev. Edler G. Hawkins.

"The voting commissioners from 194 presbyteries gave the 55-year-old New York City minister a 465-368 margin over the Rev. Alva Ray Carlidge of Erie, Pa."

The election of the Negro moderator underlines the militant role the Church's leaders have taken against racial discrimination. He is pastor of St. Augustine Presbyterian church in the Bronx.

"The fact of his election will be more eloquent than any sermon," said J. Vernon Lloyd, an attorney from Danville, Calif., in his speech nominating Rev. Hawkins.

Blatt-Musmanno Cliff-Hanger Hangs On Vote Recount In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — As a result of numerous complaints and legal action in the tense struggle for the Democratic party's U.S. senator nomination, the Philadelphia County Board of Election has ordered a complete recount of the votes cast here in the April 28 primary election.

The announcement that all of the city's 3,300 voting machines would be reopened came as Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the state Supreme Court and State Secretary of Internal Affairs Genevieve Blatt were in a tiff for the nomination.

Maurice S. Osser, commission chairman, said the action was taken without outside pressures. He estimated it would take three days to complete the recount.

A recheck of 15 of Philadelphia's 60 wards sent Miss Blatt into a 55-vote lead. The recount gave Miss Blatt an additional 123 votes. The votes were registered on machines, but had not been recorded on tally sheets. Musmanno picked up 69 votes, thus giving Miss Blatt the 55-vote edge.

That brought the unofficial total figures in Philadelphia to 67,903 for Miss Blatt and 128,256 for Musmanno.

There are 544 absentee ballots which have been challenged.

The two candidates became deadlocked in the vote tally Wednesday when a court ordered check of Philadelphia's 42nd Ward gave Miss Blatt a net gain of 172.

gave Miss Blatt 365,788 votes to 286,292 for Musmanno. This does not include Philadelphia, Lackawanna, Washington and Somerset counties. The State Elections Bureau has certified the vote in 51 counties.

In Lackawanna, Blatt polled 6,546 to 23,921 for the jurist. She received 16,430 in Washington to 19,996 for Musmanno, and 3,919 in Somerset to 2,227 for Musmanno. In Lackawanna 422 absentee ballots are challenged, with 28 absentees challenged in Washington.

Miss Blatt's attorneys already have filed suit in Dauphin County Court challenging the election in the event Musmanno is declared the winner.

Osser said that "opening of all the machines will eliminate a lot of doubt in a lot of people's minds. It also will keep Philadelphia's reputation for honest elections."

Earlier today, James H. Duffy, a U.S. Senate investigator, returned to Washington to report to a Senate Subcommittee on Elections his observations on rechecks of voting machines in Philadelphia.

"There seems to have been a definite pattern in Ward 42 of recording votes for Justice Musmanno which should have been recorded in the Blatt column," he said.

Duffy was sent here by the subcommittee at the request of Miss Blatt's supporters, who contend there has been fraudulent voting.

All voting machines in the city have been opened before for a recount, but this is the first time that the county board of elections took it upon itself to order a citywide recount, Osser said. "The county commissioners decided to open all of the machines after some already were opened and differences found."

"The commissioners want to make sure there is an honest count in the entire city in order to be fair to both candidates."

Osser said watchers from both sides have been invited to be present at the recount. He admitted that "differences and irregularities" have been found in some of the machines already opened under court order.

In another development, Common Pleas Judge Vincent A. Carroll ordered a tally of thousands of votes cast in blank spaces on Jamestown voting machines used in 13 wards in Philadelphia.

The votes will not be certified immediately as part of the official tabulation. Judge Carroll said he wanted the tally as the basis for further legal argument over whether these votes should be included in the official tally.

Carroll acted on a petition filed by attorneys for the Democratic City Committee.

The Jamestown machines had three horizontal rows: Row A for Republicans, Row B for Democrats and Row C for candidates in special congressional and legislative elections. The latter names occupied only a section at the far right of the column. Keys over the remaining part of Row C were unlabeled. The petitioners claimed some voters pulled these keys in the mistaken belief they were voting for one of three candidates for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

The speaker earned her B.A. degree at the University of North Dakota and her M.S.W. at the University of Louisville. She had been employed by the Federal Government and worked in the Veterans Administration and Department of Health as a social worker.

Mrs. Johnson discussed the work done at the Guidance Center at Easton and at the branch office located in the General Hospital at East Stroudsburg. She also described the methods used which help reveal the cause of anxieties in people in order to help them overcome a particular problem.

Mrs. Johnson was introduced by Henry McCool. The program chairman was Elwood R. Hintze.

James A. Bell of the Hazleton Kiwanis Club was a guest at the meeting.

Ralph Shupp has been named delegate to the national convention.

SU's Elementary Concert In Gymnasium Tonight

STROUDSBURG — Patricia Haglund, Mills College, New York, will be guest conductor at the Stroud Union elementary schools' combined band and choral concert tonight.

The program, "This Is My Country", will be performed at the Stroud Union High School gymnasium at 7:30.

It will open with the singing by the combined choruses of a medley from The Carnival of Venice; May Day Carol; Drill, Ye Warriors; No Man Is an Island and Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho.

The Morey School Choir will perform Kentucky Babe and He's Got the Whole World in His Hands. The combined choruses will return to give a rendition of An American Is a Lucky Man, Let There Be Peace on Earth and Dry Bones.

The first part of the band concert will be conducted by Ralph Harrison, instrumental instructor in the elementary schools and director of the junior band. The performance will include Laurel March, Chanson, Bright Eyes, Andy's Theme, and Prayer and March from the opera "Der Freischutz."

The trumpet trio featured in "Bright Eyes" will be made up of Tom Pyle, Steve Gordon and Tom Mannix, while the clarinet trio in Andy's Theme consists of Nancy Frailey, Mary Jane Transue and Jerry Congdon.

This is My Country, utilizing the combined band and chorus under the baton of Miss Haglund, will close the concert.

The program was prepared by Mrs. Earl Willhoite, music teacher at Ramsey and Morey schools; Mrs. Gary Dennis, Hamilton, Morey and Delaware Water Gap schools; Patricia Ungemach, Arlington Heights, Clearview and Ananook schools; and Ralph Harrison.

Why Subsidize Cities?

The House Rules Committee Wednesday voted 8 to 4 for a $500 million program of federal grants to urban areas for mass transportation facilities and sent the bill to the floor of the House for action.

The House bill is more generous with the taxpayers' money than a similar bill passed by the Senate last year. The Senate measure authorized $375 million in federal grants and $375 million in loan guarantees for municipalities which borrow money to build new transportation facilities.

The House bill is a three year program of gifts with no strings attached to cities which need new subways, trains and other commuter facilities.

Sponsors of the bill say they have enough votes to pass it. They are, obviously, the big city representatives who will be political heroes at the polls if they can tap the federal treasury to help their local problems.

There is no question of the need for improved transportation facilities in the exploding metropolitan areas of America. But there are many questions about the proposed method of financing new subway, bus and train systems for the cities.

Some cities have solved their transportation problems or tried to solve them with local financing through bond issues.

Some have private enterprise bus systems, trains and subways. But many are finding that the costs of running these systems are too high for efficient operation at a profit.

The solution is often public operation by municipal authorities supported by bond issues for capital expenses and by tax revenues and travel fares for operational expenses.

This is a far better method than the proposed federal grant of money. Federal aid should be given only when a community or area has a problem so big that it cannot possibly solve it with local finances.

The big cities do not all qualify for such assistance. Many which would be eligible for this help have not attempted to solve their transportation problems by other methods.

This proposed federal aid program could quickly snowball into a huge, expensive and never-ending gift of funds. It should not be resorted to until all local efforts have proved a failure.

Zip Code Buffoonery

Every number attached to our name costs us a little bit of freedom and privacy.

An Air Force Reserve officer has complained to a Congressman that "history may record me as the first zip code casualty." A number may cost him his position.

He says he is threatened with expulsion from the reserve because he refused to answer a question about his zip code number. He refused to give his zip code number and has been ordered to a hearing June 22 to answer for his insubordination.

Said the amazed reserve officer: "We can take heart in knowing that our country's defenses are strong so long as we have such alert and determined high ranking officers in the Air Force to ferret out and punish such criminals as I."

Said the amused Congressman, F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana:

"Had I not been dealing with so many bureaucratic buffoons during my 26 years in Congress, I would have been apoplectic over the example you sent men."

It is silly in the first place for the officer not to report his zip code number to the Air Force. But disciplinary action over a zip code number is a new low in bureaucratic buffoonery.

"A new war of independence begins on the Cuban soil.

"In little more than five years after what had been the dawn of national hopes, the Communist usurpation, installed in power through treason, has violated all the rights, submerged the people in misery, destroyed the wealth of the country, implanted totalitarian terror and placed in foreign hands the destiny of the nation."

Political Pause

(First Of Three Columns From Europe)

By Walter Lippmann

In two of the three capitals I have just been visiting, in London and in Bonn, there is a political pause until the coming elections produce a government which has an effective mandate. Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Dr. Ludwig Erhard are preoccupied with the coming elections.

The British government can take no lead and can make no commitments since in all likelihood there will be a Labor government by October. While it must react to Nasser and Sukarno, it can do so only within the grooves of old and established policies. Chancellor Erhard, though he is said to be very popular in Germany, has yet to win an election in his own right. Like President Johnson in the weeks after Nov. 22, he is much aware that he is standing in another man's shoes.

Only in France do people take it for granted that Gen. Charles de Gaulle's authority is good for some years to come. They do this on the assumption that the general's health is unimpaired by his recent operation.

I was interested to find when I was in Paris that the most difficult question of an authoritarian government, the most difficult question about General de Gaulle, has been answered. This is the question of the succession in case the general is displaced. The prime minister, Georges Pompidou, has been acquiring great strength and is unmistakably the next in line. There appears to be no likelihood of a controversy among the Gaullists about the succession.

And so, though the period of the major elections in the Western Alliance will last until the end of next year, it is already as certain as such things can be that President Johnson will be elected and that the principal figures with whom he will be dealing are Charles de Gaulle, Harold Wilson and Ludwig Erhard.

Granted that nothing is absolutely certain — as all of us remember who went wrong in the Truman-Dewey election of 1948 — granted that there could be catastrophes which are now unforeseeable, and allowing for acts of God, these are the four heads of government who will have the leading parts in the Western Alliance.

I found no evidence in Germany that the Social Democrats expect to defeat Dr. Erhard, and no great gusto for trying to defeat him. There is no substantial difference in foreign policy between the Social Democrats and the Erhard-

Schroeder Christian Democrats. General de Gaulle has not wooed the West Germans away from the Atlantic Alliance, and the Franco-German marriage which he and Dr. Adenauer celebrated has not been consummated. All the Germans I saw were almost embarrassingly, dependent upon the United States. The mere mention of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's suggestion that our six divisions in Germany should be reduced causes acute depression and dismay.

In domestic affairs, there is in West Germany, as there is all over Western Europe, a strong anti-Marxist tendency on the left. The German Socialists and the British Socialists have the same fundamental view, which is that the issue between them and the conservatives and liberals is not whether to nationalize industry. The issue is how to adjust industry to the technological revolution which is only in its early beginnings. On this basic issue, Marxism throws no light whatsoever. For Marx wrote long before the present technological revolution began. So British and German Socialists have shed Marxist almost entirely, even in their thinking and their intentions.

In Britain, the Conservative government has recently converted itself to the idea of planning the national economy, and its intellectual differences with Harold Wilson's current Labor Party policies are not very distinct. All this has a critical bearing upon the main theme of European international politics and on the general position of the governments which are coming up. For the watering down of ideology and dogmatic doctrine is a necessary condition for what is going on. This is the opening of Eastern Europe to the West and of Western Europe to the East. In short, the breaking of holes through the iron curtain. (To be continued)

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison
HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:
Will Wonders Never Cease! — For the first time in thirty years Pennsylvania motorists will have a brand new road map!

The new maps are scheduled to start rolling for public consumption this coming week — nearly a million of 'em: 750,000 to be exact, according to the Department of Highways — about a quarter million more maps than were printed last year.

But perhaps the most striking aspect of the new map is the fact that until this year the basic format of the Pennsylvania road map hadn't changed in thirty years. The year 1934 was the last time the thing was overhauled from New York State to Maryland.

You just don't create a new map overnight, incidentally. . . . The Department's map drafting chief (cartographer, sir) Richard D. Howell has been working on the doggone re-mapping of Pennsylvania's map for two and a half years; no outside help involved. It's been strictly a department project from beginning to finished product. . . . Working with cartographer Howell has been a draftsman and three off-and-on helpers.

At first glance you may not notice the change in map. . . . It's the same size — and of course the outline of the state hasn't changed, but it's the little things that make the new map. . . . In the first place, as you open the map you're not smitten with the old eyeball-shattering conglomeration. . . . It's quite a bit more soothing to the eye and once you use it, you'll agree: much easier to read.

For example, the green and pink colors of the state forest and game lands have been toned down, as well as the screaming red of the main highway system. . . . Type faces of towns, cities and counties have been changed. . . . They're much easier to read. For once you can see county lines at a glance without the necessity of borrowing the old family magnifying glass. . . . The color of the county names has been changed from filtered blue to bold black. . . . In fact all names are in black as opposed to the old dark blue. . . . Pennsylvania's huge new interstate system (both completed and a-building) is designated clearly in brown with a triple-line overlay. . . . Even different colors have been used for adjoining states, as against the old yellow system for all neighbors in the past. . . . You'll like the new Pennsylvania road map.

(How much did the new uniform cost? . . . Oh, around $22,000.)

Unhappy News — The Pennsylvania Game Commission this week came up with the estimation that 4,325 deer died in the Keystone State during the past winter due to "starvation and other causes induced by malnutrition, cold and deep snow." Interestingly, the 1964 estimate is the largest in the six-year history of the Game Commission's annual tabulation.

And Our Literature

(Editor's Note: A colleague has written an article that pertains to all of us. It should be given careful consideration. It would be an injustice to print only excerpts. Here in a series of articles is the workmanlike of Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Editor of The Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune. It is entitled, "Who is Tampering with the Soul of America?")

Sixth In Series
And there's our literature. The old eye-poppers of the past, which tourists used to carry back from Paris under their dirty shirts, are now tame stuff. Compared to some of our modern slush, "Lolitas" reads like the minutes of the Epworth League.

"Lady Chatterley's Lover" has been draped with the mantle of art, and it is now on sale in the corner drugstore to your high-school-age son or daughter for 50 cents. Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer," which resembles a collection of inscriptions taken from privy walls, is about to join Lady Chatterley.

The quick-buck boys have apparently convinced our bun-riddled judges that there is no difference between a peep show and a moral lecture.

And, of course, we have our latter-day historical novels in which the romance of man's upward movement from savagery is lost in a confused welter of bunnings and bunnings. The foreign reader of one of these epics on the development of the American West must marvel that our forefathers found time to quell the Comanches, plow up Kansas and build the transcontinental railroad, while spending practically all their time in the hay.

Don Maxwell of the Chicago "Tribune" has recently asked his book department to quit advertising scatalogical literature by including it in the list of best sellers. The critics and the book publishers have denounced him for tampering with the facts. I would like to raise a somewhat larger question: "Who is tampering with the soul of America?"

For nations do have souls. They have collective personalities. People who think well of themselves collectively exhibit clan and enthusiasm and morale. When nations cease believing in themselves, when they regard their institutions with cynicism and their traditions with flippancy, they will not long remain great nations. When they seek learning without effort and wages without work, they are beginning to stagger.

Where they become hedonistic and pleasure-oriented, when their Boy Scouts on their 14-mile hikes start to hitch, there's trouble ahead. Where payola becomes a way of life, expense-account, cheating, common, and union goonery a fiercely defended "right" that nation is in danger. And where police departments attempt to control burglary by the novel method of making it a department monopoly, then the chasm yawns.

Do not let me overdraw the picture. This is still a great, powerful, vibrant, able, optimistic nation. Americans — our readers — do believe in themselves and in their country. But there is rot and there is blight and there is cutting out and filling to be done if we, as the leader of free men, are to survive the hammer blows which quite plainly are in store for us all.

We have reached the stomach-turning point. We have reached the point where we should re-examine the debilitating philosophy of permissiveness. Let this not be confused with the philosophy of liberty.

Demo Finances

Washington — The finances of the Democratic National Committee are undergoing an exhaustive scrutiny — on the personal orders of President Johnson.

This is the first time this has been done in a number of years.

An accounting firm has been hired to make a detailed year-to-year audit of contributions and expenditures since 1961.

Party insiders are saying the President particularly wants to know:

Whether there are still unpaid debts from the 1960 campaign. Since 1961, the committee has collected more than $5 million, but the President has been told certain 1960 expenses have yet to be paid. He wants to get at the bottom of that.

How much money has gone to a polling organization and public relations firm in which an influential member of the White House staff had a considerable interest.

Who would be on detailed listing of the committee's salaries and expenses, particularly individuals doing special jobs. Top among these are Stephen Smith, young brother-in-law of the late President Kennedy and under him the real boss of the national committee; and Paul Corbin, close assistant of Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who was let out soon after Johnson became President.

Two reasons are credited as being behind this financial audit:

(1) National Chairman John Bailey has largely been a figurehead as far as the committee's finances are concerned. National Treasurer Richard Maguire, long a close Kennedy lieutenant, has handled the purse-strings. The President is said to want Clifton Carter, his closest political assistant, to "move into this crucial sphere."

(2) Carter is in the process of building up a $12 million campaign chest for the fall election. That's what Democratic strategists figure is needed for the presidential race. Between $3 and $4 million is expected to be raised at the end of this month at two giant combination $1,000-a-plate dinners and $100-a-ticket galas in New York and Washington.

It is the President's purpose that Carter be in charge of this multi-million dollar electioneering fund.

BLANK BULLETS — President Johnson is beginning to make discreet soundings on a possible running mate.

This is being done very warily. So far the President has confined his proings to old and trusted friends, and always in a carefully casual and off-handed manner. Illustrative is the following revealing incident:

In the course of a leisurely White House chat with a longtime friend, the President nonchalantly asked what he had been hearing about the vice presidency. The friend replied he was finding considerable sentiment for Attorney General Robert Kennedy among rank-and-file leaders.

"If you don't watch out," bluntly advised the friend, "Bobby will line up a lot of convention delegates and, in effect, force you to put him on your ticket. That could happen."

The President listened intently, but said nothing. Hoping to draw him out, the friend continued:

"What about Adlai Stevenson and Sargent Shriver? Either would make a good running mate. They are well known, capable and come from a major state. What about them?"

"Well, what about them?" exclaimed the President. "As far as I can see, they haven't got a delegate between them."

POLITICALS — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will be on hand at the New York launching, later this month, of a nationwide tour of papers and other possessions of her late husband. Also participating in the event will be Attorney General Robert Kennedy. Purpose of the tour is to raise funds for the Kennedy Memorial Library. This will be the former First Lady's first formal appearance since her husband's funeral.

The State Department is arranging a series of speeches for Attorney General Kennedy when he goes to Europe next month. In addition to speaking in West Berlin, on the anniversary of his late brother's address there, he will also give addresses in Italy, the Netherlands and Britain. His principal topic will be the "revolution of youth."

Nasal Condition
Is a post-nasal drip caused by weather or climate? Post-nasal drip is a general term that means different things to different people. Post-nasal drip may be caused by infection of the sinuses, allergy, large adenoids, humidity and climate. Post-nasal drip, sometimes called "catarrh," can be relieved when the basic cause is established. Relief from chronic discomfort can often be obtained with very simple remedies.

Necessary Injections
Why are injections of gamma globulin necessary when people have been exposed to measles or hepatitis? Gamma globulin is a complicated substance in the blood essential to the body's defense mechanism against infection. The injections are given in order to increase the body's immunity and resistance to the germ or virus to which it has been exposed.

Dear Abby

Sow The Seed, Lady

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: How do you tell city relatives that you aren't living on a farm just to keep their kids for the whole summer? These relatives don't ASK if they can send their children, they TELL you they are coming. I think two weeks is plenty, but we get them the day after school lets out, and they stay until the day before school starts again. These kids are older than our own, and they tease ours continually. I am supposed to do all the cooking, baking, washing, ironing and help with the chores in the field, and be real happy to have the extra work from the nieces and nephews. Advice through your column would be appreciated. Maybe they'll read it and take the hint.

DREADING SUMMER

DEAR DREADING: If you haven't the courage to TELL them that you will be glad to have their children for TWO WEEKS ONLY, then you'll have to put up with them all summer. The meek may indeed inherit the earth, but they don't have to accept abuse as a down payment.

DEAR ABBY: I am so lonesome I could die. I would like a nice man I could support, keep house for, buy presents for and to love. All he would have to do is love me back. I have never had anyone love me and no one to love. I have been married for 22 years to a I-don't-know-what-you-would-call him, but he isn't a man. I am still married, but if a real man came along I would get a divorce fast. I am 53 but don't look it. I work every day and love my work. I want to meet a good clean man who would like to meet a good clean woman with a house (paid for), a car (also paid for) and a job.

DEAR LONESOME: When you married your husband you swore in the presence of God and man to keep them in sickness or in health, for better or for worse, 'til death parted you. I don't know what ails your mate, but he is yours. You will have no trouble finding another male to support, buy presents for, keep house for and to "love" if all you ask in return is to be "loved back." But don't expect to replace your "I-don't-know-what-you-would-call-him" with a real man because real men don't let women support them in exchange for "love."

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and am quite popular with both boys and girls. About fifty kids a day tell me that they tried to get me on the phone but my line was busy for so long they gave up. It's my mother! Abby, I hate to complain, but she is the gabbiest person in the whole world. . . . and it is wrecking my popularity. She gets on the phone and talks for an hour to one person, and as soon as she hangs up she calls another person and ties up the phone for another hour. How does a 15-year-old girl tell her mother she talks too darned much?

GIRL WITH A GABBY MOTHER

DEAR GIRL: She doesn't — not if she's smart.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DOT-TIE AND FRANK: "Showers" are traditionally parties given FOR the bride by her friends. The bride and groom decide who shall be invited to their wedding. Everyone who is invited to a shower is not automatically invited to the wedding. Nor should they expect to be.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Readers Are Asking

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.
Is there a difference between a heart attack and heart failure?

Yes, there is a distinct difference. A heart attack is a sudden illness usually caused when the blood circulation to the heart muscle itself is interfered with. The blood vessels that bring nourishment to the heart are called the coronary arteries. When these blood vessels are suddenly closed, a heart attack follows.

Heart failure is usually not sudden. When the heart has been weakened by infections like rheumatic fever or by a birth defect, a severe strain imposed on the heart by excessive physical exertion may cause a "failure." Long-standing illnesses in the lungs may impose a burden on the heart that may be too strenuous, and produce heart failure.

Pulse Rate
Is there any pulse rate that is considered absolutely normal?

There are many normal variations of the heart and pulse rate. What is normal for one person need not be normal for another. Eighty beats per minute is the average.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Chameleon
The chameleon is a small lizard that inhabits trees. It is commonly believed that the chameleon changes its color at will, to match the color of its surroundings.

The chameleon's color does change, but the action is involuntary and the color does not always match the surroundings. The change in color is a reaction to temperature or sunlight, or is a result of fear or hunger.

The belief that this lizard changes its color at will led to the unflattering name "chameleon" as applied to a person who shows little strength of conviction — a person who "changes color" to meet the approval of any individual or group he happens to be with.

Two More Camps Hit With Taxes

STROUDSBURG — Tax assessments were levied against two camps yesterday, and a third was brought before the county commissioners through an oversight.

Representatives of Streamside Camp in Jackson Twp., and officials of the Jackson Twp. school board, showed up before the commissioners and the chief and deputy assessors, only to find out that the camp had already been exonerated.

Through an oversight, the chief assessor was not notified that the camp had been exonerated by the previous board of commissioners in December.

Solicitor Russell Mervine noted that any assessment levied against the camp would have to be for 1965. This will be done in the future.

Atty. Edward Hoffner appeared for the camp.

Atty. Alex Bensinger appeared for the Jackson Twp. school board along with Howard Hartshorn, board president. Bensinger said that if there were any chance that he could appeal the 1964 exonerations, he would do so.

Hartshorn said, "I have here a petition signed by 500 persons saying that they want the camps in Jackson Twp. to pay taxes. The people of Jackson feel strongly about the camps using the land and the roads in the township and not paying a nickel toward it."

Atty. Leo Achterman, who has been retained by Mervine to help with the processing of the camp assessments, said, "I think that there may be phases of this act (the state act concerning the exemption of camps from paying taxes) which may not be constitutional."

"This might be a consideration next year. What may happen between the courts and legislature is undetermined. We have the Pinhook decision against the county up to the Supreme Court right now."

Pocono Plateau Christian Association
The idea of unconstitutionality—also being tried now in the U. S. Supreme Court by the same Maryland couple which initiated the prayer-in-schools litigation—was continued in the discussion of the Pocono Plateau Christian Assn. camp in Bartlett Twp.

Atty. Achterman said, "Since this is a Methodist camp, I have serious doubts whether it qualifies for exemption under the act at all."

The representative from the camp said that other denominations use the facilities besides the Methodists—up to 10 per cent from other churches.

"Since it violates the constitution to say a non-sectarian prayer in school, can the county channel funds belonging to all the people away by exempting church-oriented camps?" asked Achterman.

"Church groups such as yours have brought your teachings into the county and tied up lands which otherwise might yield revenue to all the people," Achterman said.

"I don't think that public funds can be diverted for sectarian purposes. I think all the church groups which come to the county should give serious consideration to helping the county with its financial problems," he added.

After consultation between Mervine, Achterman, and George Robinson, attorney for the camp, the solicitor decided that the camp did qualify for partial exemption. The exemption act was modified by Act 295 last May which said counties could tax those lands not used directly for the purposes of the camp.

The commissioners then exempted 85 acres and several buildings according to the recommendation of C. A. Naiman, chief assessor.

Thus, 650 acres and a caretaker's building were to be assessed. The total assessed value of the land came to $9,100 and for the building to $2,500.

The representative then disclosed that he thought the camp contained only 700 total acres, not 735 as the assessor had said. He also said that only half the caretaker's building was used by the caretaker.

The assessment on the building was then reduced to $1,250 and Atty. Achterman said he would check the exact amount of land at the camp according to deed books in the recorder's office.

He said that the 85 exempt acres would be subtracted from the total acreage found and the remainder would be assessed at $40 per acre.

St. John's in the Poconos St. John's in the Poconos was given a straight assessment of $1,050. The assessor said that the camp comprised 113.5 total acres, of which 25.5 were being used.

He said that this left 88.3 taxable acres, which yielded an assessed value of $1,050.

No argument was put up by representatives of the camp.

The commissioners—Stanley Rader, Stuart Pipher, and John Price—sat in the judges seats in courtroom number two to hear the cases.

Playground Fence Contract Awarded Bethlehem Firm

STROUDSBURG — A bid of $1,881 for fencing and gates for the Third St. Playground in Stroudsburg was awarded to the Bethlehem Fence Works by the Monroe County Commissioners yesterday.

The fencing was for 840 feet of chain link fence at $2.14 a foot. A single gate cost $24 and a double gate cost $60.

The board moved to accept the bid. It was the only bid. No bids were received on item two of the original advertisement, which called for bids on blacktopping and erecting a basketball court at the playground.

County engineer Edward Hess will solicit prices for the work.

In other business, the commissioners said that the Civil Defense office could order a chalk board, movie screen, map and status board with light combination as no bids on the item were received.

Local Firms Don't Bid
Commissioner Pipher said, "Here are three items which were bid. Only one bid was received and that from out of the county. No wonder we can't keep work in the county — firms don't bid for it."

The board interviewed George Perich of Emmaus for the position of deputy assessor. No decision was made.

Bruce Phillips of WVPO talked to the board about the possibility of setting up a program whereby the commissioners could answer questions from the people of the county. The board decided that since so often its work involves legal technicalities, it would not consider a direct telephone program feasible. It said that perhaps it could answer letters that the citizens could write to the program. Phillips was asked to draw up sample letters.

Samuel Gearhart of the VFW invited the board to a breakfast at the Penn-Stroud Hotel Memorial Day. Pipher and Price accepted, while chairman Stanley Rader said he would decide later.

Pocono Mountains Industries, Inc., an industrial promotion group, made its bid to become the official industrial promotion agency for the county — thus eligible for state aid — by submitting approval for the submission from what it considered was over 50 per cent of the population of the county.

Letters of Approval
It submitted letters of approval from Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, and Stroud Twp., which have a combined population of 19,196. The county population is 39,567, just over twice as many.

The group will be instructed by the board to get approval from another municipality to push it over the 50 per cent mark.

Ralph S. Williamson of the Right of Way office of the state Dept. of Highways office in Allentown asked the board to contribute toward the $3,300 in property damage that would be caused by roadwork on a road from Little Gap to Kunkletown in Eldred Twp.

The board agreed to give $200.

Grace Church To Kickoff Fund Drive

EAST STROUDSBURG — Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church will open its 70th anniversary "Growing in Grace" fund appeal on May 24. Ned D. Frick, campaign committee chairman, said yesterday.

The appeal will officially get under way at 6:30 p.m. in the main ballroom of the Penn-Stroud Hotel when the congregation will be addressed by Richard T. Sutcliffe, of New York City, associate director of press, radio and television of the Lutheran Church in America.

Speakers will also present the fund plan and program to parishioners.

May 26 will mark the beginning of an every member visitation by the Kirby-Smith Associates, a group of trained clergymen and laymen. Their visits will be evangelistic as well as financial, Pastor William F. Wunder said.

Funds will be used for structural repairs to the church and the installation of a new heating system, increase of parking facilities, a parish secretary and missionary support.

Goal of the campaign is $70,000, $1,000 for each year of its history," according to Atty. Elmer D. Christine, lay-president of the church.

4-Year-Old Indictment Dismissed

SCRANTON — A four-year-old federal indictment charging Dr. Thomas E. Larkin Sr. of Cresco with income tax evasion has been dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

Federal Judge William J. Nealon signed the order dismissing the indictment, it was disclosed in Scranton yesterday.

Larkin is an umpire for the Anthracite Board of Conciliation.

Bernard Brown, U.S. attorney for the middle district, filed the petition for dismissal.

Dr. Larkin was indicted on Dec. 14, 1960, and charged with attempting to evade part of the income tax due for 1956, 1957 and 1958.

In October, 1961, Federal Judge Frederick V. Folmer dismissed a motion by counsel for Dr. Larkin to quash the indictment.

At that time, Judge Folmer noted that Atty. Daniel H. Jenkins, then serving as U. S. Attorney, had presented evidence to a grand jury in the case without the authorization of the attorney general.

Funeral Held

EAST STROUDSBURG — Funeral services for Jacob F. Smith, 65, of 619 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, were held Thursday at 1 p.m. in the Lanterman Funeral Home with the Rev. Harold C. Eaton officiating.

Burial was in the Sand Hill Cemetery, Bushkill. Pallbearers were Jay Peters, Halsey Melvin, John I. Lanterman, Frank VanVleet, Lafayette Strunk, and Howard Smith.

Trailer Fire

EAST STROUDSBURG — Smoke from an overheated oil burner in a trailer on Normal St., East Stroudsburg, was contained yesterday at 2:10 a.m. by East Stroudsburg firemen.

Herm Meinhardt, fire chief, said no damage resulted from the incident. Firemen responded with one pumper and a rescue truck. The name of the trailer's owner was not available.

Dunne Ace of Bushkill; William Serfass Jr. of Kunkletown RD 1; Eugene Witteroff of Stroudsburg; Richard DeFue of Bushkill; Horace Cole of Stroudsburg; Mrs. Elizabeth Walter of Shawnee; Mrs. Margaret Keller of Stroudsburg; and Glenn Mosher of East Stroudsburg.

Creditors File Suit For $80,000

STROUDSBURG — Arnold C. and Myrtle L. Eschenbach of 403 N. 8th St., Stroudsburg, owe $80,000 to their creditors, according to a suit filed yesterday in the office of Frank Smith, Monroe County prothonotary.

The suit was filed by the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. of Stroudsburg against the Eschenbachs, who own Eschenbach and Sons, a contracting firm.

The suit says that Arnold Eschenbach took over the firm when his father died on August 28, 1961, and that now he owes the bank in excess of $65,000 and other creditors in excess of $15,000.

Fraudulently Overstated
It states that Eschenbach borrowed money because of the name of the firm, and that he showed bank statements with fraudulently overstated assets and understated liabilities in order to continue his credit with the bank.

It further states that he withdrew large sums of money which were dissipated in intemperate living.

The suit in equity asks the court to decree that conveyances entered into by Eschenbach have rendered him insolvent, and also asks the court to decree that Eschenbach should not convey any jointly owned property as long as his creditors remain unpaid.

The suit was filed by Atty. Elmer D. Christine and Arlington W. Williams, for the bank.

Golden Deeds Tickets

EAST STROUDSBURG — Tickets for the Golden Deeds Award Banquet to honor former state Senator Montgomery F. Crowe Monday are moving well, according to Kenneth Alsopch of the sponsoring organization, the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club.

Alsopch said that anyone wishing to purchase tickets could buy them from him at the East Stroudsburg National Bank or at the Mountain Lake House in Marshalls Creek, where the banquet will be held Monday at 7 p.m.

The award banquet is an annual dinner sponsored by the Exchange Club.

'Fun Day' In Pen Argyl

PEN ARGYL — A "Fun Day" program will be held today at Pen Argyl Junior-Senior High school, William Madden, supervising principal of the school, said yesterday.

The highlight of the program will be the crowning of Joann Caesar as Laurel Blossom Queen from the high school.

Included in the program is sack races, dodge ball, softball games and a tug of war.

The program will start at 1:15 p.m. and end at 4 p.m.

The Daily Record, The Stroudsburgs, Pa. — Friday, May 22, 1964

Target Date Set Financing Stroud Union Bond Issue

STROUDSBURG — June 10 has been set by the Stroudsburg Area School Authority as the target date for completing final arrangements on financing a $3,385,000 bond issue and awarding construction contracts for a new junior high school, athletic stadium and renovations to the high school.

Howard Merring, authority president, said yesterday Boyd H. Kline, who was low bidder on the project, has given the authority a 30-day extension on the contract.

The bids were opened April 3 and Kline's contract called for the bids to be awarded by May 18. The 30-day extension will give the authority until June 18 to award the contract.

Kline has been notified the authority has accepted the bid and is waiting for money from the bond issue to be in its possession, according to Merring.

Costs Good Weather
Kline said the delay will cost him a month or six weeks of good working weather. He said all the necessary equipment has been ordered and as soon as the contract is awarded work will start.

The construction portion of the bond issue will cost $1,410,366. This will include the junior high school, stadium and renovations to the high school's science department and auditorium.

Included in the new issue will be bonds floated in 1956 to finance additions to the high school and the Arlington Heights elementary school and in 1961 to make additions to the Ramsey and Moore schools.

Balance $1,121,000

The original 1956 issue was for $1,395,000. In the eight years the issue has been in effect the school board has paid $658,000 toward its retirement. The present balance is $1,121,000 because most of the payments went toward paying interest.

Woman Injured In Crash

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Catherine R. Vogt, 46, of 102 Jane St., Stroudsburg, was injured yesterday at 8:50 a.m. in a one-car accident at Scott and N. Fifth Streets.

Mrs. Vogt was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where she was treated for rib injuries and released.

Stroudsburg Police said Mrs. Vogt was traveling east on Scott Street at time of accident. She entered Scott St. at N. Ninth St. and her car started picking up speed when the accelerator apparently stuck.

She applied the emergency brake, but it failed to slow her down. Then she applied her foot brakes and that did not stop the car. She sounded her horn as she traveled from N. Ninth to Scott St.

At the intersection of N. Fifth and Scott Streets the car crossed the highway, hit a tree, jumped the sidewalk, hit the home of Russell E. Ramsey at 302 N. Fifth St., and came to a stop in some shrubs next to the house, according to police.

Mrs. Kunkle's Rites Conducted

EAST STROUDSBURG — Funeral services for Mrs. Amelia G. Kunkle, 77, of 36 S. Green St., East Stroudsburg, were held Thursday at 3:30 p.m. in the Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, with the Rev. William F. Wunder officiating.

Burial was in the Kresgeville Cemetery. Pallbearers were Douglas Townsend, Thomas W. Miller, Russell M. Hoffman, Clifford Klutner, Ronald Dalley, and James Bunnell. The Lanterman Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Here Is A Choice Of Simple And Attractive Vacation Homes

Many Families Realizing Value Of Owning A Second Property

By one estimate there are more than a million vacation homes scattered throughout America's countryside and seashores and more are going up at the rate of $5,000 a year. There are plenty of reasons for the growing trend: more leisure time, better transportation and longer vacation periods, of course, but also because many families are beginning to realize a second home is a sound investment.

If designed with care it can become valuable rental property during off seasons, and an even more valuable retirement home for later years.

Today House-of-the-Week readers have a choice of two such homes. One, designed by architect Herman H. York, is a contemporary model with a basic area of 718 square feet. The other, by architect Rudolph A. Matern, is a 768 square foot split-level cottage.

UNUSUAL H-30
York's home features a dramatic roof line formed by a simple pair of cross gables set with the ridges running from corner to corner, opening each corner of the house to ridge height.

Set around one structural corner, adjoining the kitchen, is a 400 square foot deck with a built-in table. On the opposite corner is a covered sleeping porch, screened, and accessible to the bath and linen facilities. As an alternate to the porch, York offers a second fully enclosed bunk room.

The main room is 20 feet by 20 feet, has a metal fireplace and an exposed plank and beam ceiling. The adjoining kitchen has adequate room for dining.

The exterior is done in vertical boards to simplify cutting of the sloping roof line. The roof should be of medium size cedar shakes, says York, to avoid overpowering the scale of the comparatively small building.

SPLIT-LEVEL H-31
Architect Matern chose the split-level approach to take advantage of varied terrain conditions at most vacation spots.

The cottage features extremely simple post and beam construction — three beams and posts in the roof and four beams and concrete block piers in the floor. A handyman could build the wall panels (on a 4-foot module so that 4-foot wall panels could be used easily) in his basement and truck to the building site himself.

If the slope of the ground is extreme, the split may be increased as much as eight risers. If the grade is level the house could either remain a split or become a one-story by eliminating the stair and reducing the roof pitch.

The main lounge room is completely open to the broad deck, and the opening units are simplified; individual glazed doors hinged together and hung on folding door hardware.

Inside is a movable pre-fab fireplace, an extra fold-down bed in the lounge, an inside-outside shower arrangement, and a well designed kitchen with a pass-through serving bar to the lounge.

LEISURELY STRIKING: Architect York's house features a dramatic roof line and a broad deck at one corner. On the opposite corner is a covered sleeping porch or, as an alternate, a second bunk room.

H-30 FLOOR PLAN: The house proper contains 718 square feet; the deck is 400 square feet and the sleeping porch 100 square feet. Dimensions excluding the deck are 30 feet four inches by 30 feet four inches.

H-31 FLOOR PLAN: The main lounge is completely open to the broad deck through individual glazed doors hinged together. Note the outdoor shower arrangement on the side of the house.

Storage Place For Supplies

FOOD, water and light are often shut off to families whose homes have been damaged by floods, fires or other disasters.

A convenient and safe way to store the supplies is to use covered galvanized steel cans or pails. These containers are available in several sizes, so there is one to fit the space needs of every family. They are strong and durable, so fire, moisture and rodents cannot destroy supplies kept in them.

Items stored in the containers should include bottled water, canned foods, flashlights, candles and matches. These are basic emergency supplies.

A family which is isolated from its neighbors might also elect to keep a portable battery-powered radio and extra clothing among the emergency supplies, even though this may require using more than one covered metal storage can.

Plans Available For New Fence

BY BUILDING a basket-weave fence, you at once enhance the appearance of your property, create privacy and create a wind-break which also ventilates.

Fast growing in popularity as a material for making such a fence is Masonite Weatherall Siding, because it comes in a popular width, 12", is primed on one side and stands up well against the elements.

In addition, it's easily-handled and has no splinters. The tempered hardboard siding is woven between wooden posts four inches square, placed about four feet apart.

A free plan showing how to build a woven fence and three other types may be obtained by writing the Home Service Bureau, 29 North Wacker Drive, Chicago 6, Illinois, and requesting AE-309. Other styles shown are "The Good Neighbor," "Double Header" and "Hanging Garden."

Wells At Private Homes Are Being Questioned

HOMEOWNERS enjoying the numerous benefits of private water systems should be vitally concerned by recent actions and proposals by the U. S. Public Health Service in regard to restriction of private wells. In a recent announcement, Surgeon General Dr. Luther L. Terry called for state legislatures to curb the use of such wells in hundreds of thousands of homes in suburban and outlying areas.

Dr. Terry's recommendations were based on a report issued by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, a group of 26 men representing federal, state and municipal governments. (Few of the Commission were actually involved in the preparation of the report.)

On the basis of its limited research, citing isolated instances of private well pollution, the commission recommended state regulation to "minimize and limit their use to exceptional situations."

In a subsequent measure, the Public Health Service has drafted a model law, and distributed it to state health departments with the recommendation that it be introduced before legislatures for adoption. The proposed legislation would greatly restrict the use of private home water systems. This means then, that the control of building permits and land development will fall into the hands of state health officers. For land developers, this represents control over what and where building shall take place.

Summer Forecast: Hot And Sneezy

We blame winter for many of our ills, but summer is guilty of a good share, too. For some people, the hot months of the year constitute the "not-so-good" old summertime.

Medical authorities agree that the human heart is forced to work many times harder in hot, humid weather than at other times.

Another questionable contribution of the summer months is that irritating allergy that strikes millions — hay fever. Often the subject of humor, hay fever is no laughing matter to those who suffer from it.

Fortunately, reports the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, relief from both heat and hay fever is available to everyone today in modern air conditioning. The health benefits of air conditioning are undisputed. Medical authorities have attested to its usefulness in combating ailments of the heart, allergies such as hay fever, and in building up general resistance to all diseases. It plays an important role in this regard by assuring good sleeping conditions, even for night workers who must sleep during the day.

Tests have shown that air conditioning can reduce the pollen count in a room by 98 per cent. Filtering, dehumidifying and cooling the air enables allergy sufferers to relax in comfort.

Recognizing the contribution of air conditioning to health, the Internal Revenue Service has ruled it deductible as a medical expense if installed for therapeutic reasons.

Post Office Seeking Bids For Brodheadsville Work

BRODHEADSVILLE — The post office department is seeking competitive bids for an improved building to house its postal operations at Brodheadsville, postmaster general John A. Gronowski announced yesterday.

Under the department's lease construction program, a contract will be awarded to the bidder who designates a building suitable to the department's needs and agrees to improve it, according to departmental specifications and then rent it to the department for a basic period of five years, with options to renew the lease for an additional ten years.

The department's capital investment will be limited substantially to postal equipment. The building will remain under private ownership, with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

Bidding documents will be available on or about May 20, 1964 and may be obtained from Mr. T. A. Mechin, regional real estate officer, room number 307-B, general post office, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, before May 20, 1964, if available. The real estate officer will supply bidding forms, specifications, lease provisions and other information. Bids must be submitted to the real estate officer by June 15, 1964.

SU Graduate In Southwest Desert Strike

DESERT STRIKE FORCES. U.S. — Airman Third Class Robert A. DeSanto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony DeSanto of 944 Clay Ave., Stroudsburg, Pa., is in the field with U.S. Air Force Military Air Transport Service (MATS) aircraft units now engaged in Exercise Desert Strike being conducted by U.S. Strike Command.

The realistic combat operation is the largest joint air-ground training maneuver in the southwestern states since World War II.

Airman DeSanto, an aircraft propeller repairman, and other members of flying and support units of the MATS world-wide airlift force, are part of the vast Air Force team providing full air support for the U. S. Army battlefield troops participating. The exercise will run through May 30 on 13,000,000 acres of desert land in California, Arizona and Nevada.

Major elements of the Tactical Air Command and Air Force Communications Service, plus Strategic Air Command jet aerial refueling tankers also are providing airpower needed for the combat maneuver.

The airman, permanently assigned to Dover AFB, Del., is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School.

Wildrick To Enter West Point

PORTLAND — John T. Wildrick, son of Dr. and Mrs. John R. Wildrick, has received an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

A 1963 graduate of the Bangor Area Joint High School, where he played football for four years, Wildrick has just completed his freshman year at East Stroudsburg State College.

Wildrick was nominated for the appointment by Congressman Fred B. Rooney. He will enter the academy on July 1.

Pocono Marine Visits Naples

NAPLES, Italy — Marine Private First Class James M. Stout, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Stout of Pocono, visited Naples, Italy recently with Marine Battalion Team 1 operating with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

His unit is part of the large Mediterranean combat - ready naval force that serves as a constant reminder to any potential aggressor of America's determination to keep the peace.

The team is the sea assault force of the Sixth Fleet. It is scheduled to return to Camp Lejeune, N.C. in mid-June.

U. S. Educator NEA Speaker

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Francis Keppel, U. S. commissioner of education, will address the National Education Assn. as part of the association's 102nd annual meeting in Seattle, Wash., June 28 to July 3.

It is expected 10,000 educators from all parts of the country and abroad will converge on Seattle during the five-day convention.

Among the other speakers will be Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore.; Robert H. Wyatt, NEA president; Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, and James Francis, star of the "Mr. Novak" television series.

Resolutions will be offered at the meeting covering such subjects as teachers strikes, desegregation in public schools, federal support of public education, the teacher's political rights and the education of the underprivileged.

Heart Disease Target Of Meet

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Simple laboratory tests and penicillin treatment of streptococcal infections could eradicate rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease, an osteopathic pediatrician said today.

Addressing about 1,000 osteopathic physicians at the opening of the Pennsylvania Osteopathic Association convention, Dr. Otto

The Daily Record, The Stroudsburg, Pa. — Friday, May 22, 1964 7

M. Kirschner of Springfield in Delaware County said: "This simple system of culturing upper-respiratory infection makes primary prevention of rheumatic fever practical. The complete elimination of rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease is definitely possible through this method."

Although 136,000 veterans died during calendar year 1963 there remained 22,092,000 living veterans at the beginning of 1964 the Veterans Administration disclosed.

THE LAUGH'S ON US!

You can have lots of laughs at our expense at A. C. Miller Furniture Co., 350 Main St., Stroudsburg. The laugh is on us, but why should you care?

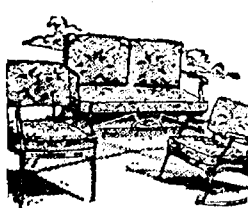

THE SAVINGS ARE ALL FOR YOU!

ALL NEW ITEMS — READ EVERY ONE . . . YOUR BUY OF A LIFETIME MAY BE HERE. SEE YESTERDAY'S PAPER FOR EVEN MORE VALUES. COME INTO THE STORE AND WE'LL SHOW YOU EVEN MORE BUYS! (TOO MANY MORE AS FAR AS WE'RE CONCERNED)

We've been carrying a solid rock maple bedroom group that is probably the best value around in colonial bedroom. We buy the suite in truckload quantities, save on freight and get lower prices so that this suite is regularly priced 10 to 15 percent less than anything comparable. This is just another example of the volume buying savings you'll find all over A. C. MILLER Furniture Store. We're always glad to see a company try to improve an already good product. That's exactly what's happening with this solid maple bedroom. The manufacturer has styled up the suite and made the finish deeper and richer. That's all to the good but it leaves us with an inventory problem. We have 4 suites of the old style and would like to clear them out now before the new suite comes in. Therefore our best buy solid rock maple bedroom becomes an even better buy. 3 piece colonial bedroom with 40 inch dresser, mirror, chest and bed regularly $219. now $158. 3 pc. suite with 50 inch double dresser and large mirror just $20 more.

The old grey mare ain't what she used to be. Yup, in this instance, the old grey bedroom ain't what they used to be. We're selling less and less light grey finishes as time goes on. Here are a few suites in grey which are reduced a great deal during our classified Sale. If you're looking for a light finish bedroom, it will pay you to see these. One Broyhill 3 pc. shaded grey mahogany bedroom with big 60" triple dresser, mirror, large chest and bookcase bed. Very heavily made with solid cone tops and sides. Reg. $289. Floor sample, only "as is" $175. One 3 pc. Bassett bedroom, silver mist finish, formica tops, 50 inch double dresser, mirror, chest, bookcase bed. Reg. $219—now $150.

One slightly mixed up 7 pc. set. The chairs come from one company, the table from another. How this happened, we're not exactly sure. The table is a 42 inch round with 2 leaves that opens to a huge 72 inches long. We think the regular price on this 7 pc. bronzed set should be $150, but with the mixup on chairs and tables we're not exactly sure. However, you can be very sure it's a good buy at the sale price of $98 for table and six chairs.

Poles on aluminum webbed folding furniture really got kicked around. Sometime it's amazed us to see how low prices can get on folding chairs and chaises. However, when we see the actual merchandise, we aren't amazed any longer. That's why the cheapest folding chairs we carry are $4.95 each and the cheapest folding chaise we carry is $8.95. If you want to buy a set of a chaise and two chairs, the price is then just $17.95.

These all have sturdy frames, hardwood varnished arms, strong webbing, heavy hardware and web separators on the chaise so the webs won't bunch together. We're sure if you look around, you'll find ones that are cheaper, but we'll guarantee you something with ours. They won't fall apart the first time you sit on them—nor the eight hundredth time either. If you want good outdoor folding aluminum webbed furniture, be sure to see us. If you want only the cheapest price, see somebody else. We'd rather you be unhappy at them, not at us.

An invitation to come into A. C. Miller Furniture and browse around at any time. Many people like to come in, see what's new and do a little dreaming. We're glad to see you and really have spent many an enjoyable hour meeting new friends.

TRY IT 30 DAYS
Our finest mattress is the Sealy Posturepedic. There are a number of reasons why this is America's best selling mattress. No, we can't cut the price on this mattress during our Classified Sale. The Posturepedic is $79.50 for the mattress and $79.50 for the box spring and worth every last cent of it. We could go on for pages to tell you why the Posturepedic is such a good mattress that it's pretty expensive to do it in the newspaper. Come in. We'll be glad to show you the Posturepedic and let you try it. Then if you think you'd like to have a really good mattress and box spring, you can try the Posturepedic in your home for 30 days at positively no obligation to you. We have made special arrangements with Sealy to take back any mattress which is so returned to us. Why do we do this? We know that if you try the Posturepedic in your home, the chances are better than 99 out of 100 you will be so pleased with the restful and comfortable sleep you'll be getting that you'll keep the mattress. So many other people have been completely satisfied with Posturepedic mattresses, we're sure you will be, too.

One figurine lamp that was $21.95. But that was before it was through the mill and dropped. Now as is, it's just $2.

Pole lamps have begun out-selling standard floor lamps by almost 10 to 1. Here's a pole lamp that was designed by somebody who thought he'd put everything in to one pole lamp. It is a pole lamp, because it extends from floor to ceiling. But it's got a regular floor lamp drum shade and 3 lights like a regular floor lamp. We don't know whether to call this a pole lamp floor lamp or what have you. Reg. $49.95. At its sale price of $12, you can put it in your living room and call it anything you like.

Dual purpose door mirrors with brass frames, 16x60 size just $3.88. Why dual purpose? If you stand close enough they give a good reflection. But the further back you go, the more distorted the reflection becomes. You can use them for a mirror and your kids can amuse themselves for hours making believe they're in a fun house watching themselves in those fun house mirrors.

Decorative wall pieces? We have some plaques, wall clocks, scones, and some items we can't find words to describe that have been decorating (?) our walls for some time. Come in and have a few laughs with us about them. While you're here the laugh will be on us, because you can buy wall plaques for as little as 50c that originally sold up to $4.95. All these items will be at least 1/2 off.

Astronaut's Training Tough; Could You Make It?

EDITOR'S NOTE—Ever wonder if you have what it takes to be an astronaut? Ronnie Thompson, San Antonio correspondent for The Associated Press, decided to find out if he could get over the first hurdle—the physical. He made it—barely—emerging with new respect for the real astronauts.

By RONNIE THOMPSON
BROOKS AIR FORCE BASE, Tex. (AP)—"Tilt your head to one side," the Air Force doctor said, dipping the tip of his syringe into a pan of water and ice cubes. "Now hold still, it won't hurt bad."

Suddenly, with the sound of a great waterfall, a surge of ice water filled and chilled my ear. The pain quickly grew almost unbearable. I shut my eyes tightly and gritted my teeth. After what seemed like an hour, but actually was only 20 seconds, the doctor let the water drain out.

Within seconds, my eyes began fluttering uncontrollably, as if they were dangling on rubber bands. Asked to stand, I fell to one side into the arms of a technician.

After about two minutes, my eyes refocused and I regained my equilibrium. I was surprised to learn that my reaction had been normal.

I had been subjected to a test to determine my vestibular function—that inner-ear mechanism which tells you whether you're right-side up, upside down, or at an angle.

It was one of the assorted ordeals that any potential astronaut must undergo to convince the government he is physically fit. The examination given at the School of Aerospace Medicine here is the most searching that can be made within the limits of current medical knowledge.

It's a rugged go. I'm convinced that the men who ride our space capsules must be near-perfect physical specimens.

I'm 26, 5-foot-10, weigh 184 pounds, wear glasses and have never flown an airplane. After seven days of being punched, poked and prodded by the Air Force doctors, I was told:

Fat Comes Off

Take off 25 pounds of fat—or turn it into lean muscle—start a rigorous physical training program and then, medically speaking, I might qualify for space travel—that is, if someday they decide to put into space a man who wears glasses.

Men who wear glasses have not been ruled out definitely for space flight, but now there is such a pool of qualified men who do not wear them that, as one doctor said, "We don't have to take a chance."

My exam started on a Monday morning. I was nervous, of course. I'm just an average American male who doesn't run two miles a day, watch my weight, or lift barbells. I was among those who laughed at the 50-mile hike fad.

Right off the bat, they started bleeding me to test my blood and sugar tolerance.

Real Blood Tests

"I've had blood tests before," I thought. "This won't be so bad." I was mistaken. This was a blood test to end all blood tests.

After a syringe was filled, the technician gave me a good-sized cup of glucose. "Drink this and be back in 30 minutes," he ordered.

When I returned, he drew more blood. Still he wasn't finished. All told, I was under the needle five times in 2½ hours.

The technician let me decide which arm to submit to the needle, but after three or four times it didn't matter. One was as sore as the other.

Then came the tilt-table, a device I was leery of because I had heard that men sometimes black out on it.

Strapped in a parachute harness, with electrodes—tiny electrical conductors—pasted to my body, I crawled onto the table and was fastened in place.

The table swept to an upright position. Straps suspended me. My feet touched nothing. The harness cut into my body, forcing my heart to work harder, and allowing the doctors to determine how it functioned under poor circulation conditions.

For 25 minutes I hung there while they checked my blood pressure and heartbeat. My hands grew cold as if they were asleep. I felt nauseous.

When I stepped from the table, my legs buckled and I nearly passed out. I was pleased to learn that my body had performed acceptably.

Next came the treadmill, where they separate the men from the boys.

Hiking Wrong Way

I went on a ramp. It was like hiking the wrong way on a tilted moving sidewalk. To keep from falling off the rear, you have to step off at a pretty good clip — 3½ miles-an-hour non-stop.

The idea is to go until you're exhausted, or until your heart hits a 190-beat-per-minute rate. I started off, feeling a bit silly walking to nowhere. The minutes passed slowly as I stared at the wall clock.

The platform gradually was tilted to higher angles, and walking became real work.

After 14 minutes, my heart hit the peak rate. The doctor stopped the test. Gasping for breath, I wished I had not smoked that last cigarette.

But doctors told me I performed within normal limits—12 to 17 minutes.

During the week, I was on a special diet. Dinner one night was dry toast and tea, plus six pills. The week wore on.

Neurology Test

For the neurology exam—brain wave tests—I sat uneasily in an easy chair. My head was marked with red pencil. Then the technician brought out some innocent-looking electrodes with small pins on one end. When I found out what he planned to do, the pins suddenly became vicious-looking.

The technician cautiously tugged on my hair.

Zip.

I went a pin. Then another. They pierced my scalp and rested just under the skin. My head felt like a pin-cushion when all 17 were in place.

I was instructed to do various exercises. I breathed pure oxygen. I had to inhale and exhale rapidly. Lights kept flashing in my face.

This went on for two hours. What they determined about my brain waves I didn't know, and I didn't care. I just wanted those pins out of my head.

A ride in a spinning chair for 15 minutes tested my tendency to air or motion sickness. My stomach began to get uneasy and I almost got sick before the weird ride ended.

The nearest I got to flying was in the centrifuge, the bullet-shaped cabin that whirled around like a carnival ride gone berserk.

As the speed increased, I could feel my face being pulled out of shape. "Stay still, don't close your eyes, and smile," I told myself, to keep from getting panicky.

Tough Going

This was hard to do. The centrifuge started and stopped three times. Each ride, the G-force against my body grew stronger. One "G" is equal to the force of gravity.

I was supposed to switch off side lights that came on in the cabin. But as the G-force built up, I began to black out and lost my side vision. After 3.2 G's I couldn't see a thing. The ride was over.

Experienced pilots can take 5G's in a sitting position. And astronauts briefly take between 11 and 17 G's on a rocket liftoff.

While I have no plans to be an astronaut, I must admit it felt pretty good to know I had survived the rugged first step. Also, they said I didn't have to take the 25 pounds of fat off right away. No crash diet, they warned.

SURVEY GEMINI CAPSULE — Astronaut Neil Armstrong, right, inspects the Gemini capsule at Cape Kennedy, Fla., while astronaut Gordon Cooper (hard hat, rear) talks with an engineer. The unmanned spacecraft is scheduled to be lifted into orbit on a Titan 2 rocket in opening launch of U.S. second man-in-space program. Personnel wear white coveralls to reduce possibility of contamination in the "white room" atop the launching tower. (AP Wirephoto)

Britain To Update Commonwealth

LONDON (AP)—Rather like the old woman who lived in a shoe, Britain has so many Commonwealth children she doesn't know what to do.

There's a tribe of 16 of them now. Thirteen have been born since the war. Two more are on the way this year.

The British Commonwealth is a family of nations straddling five continents and taking in 700 million people. If it carries on the way it's been going, critics say, it will become a memory.

It accommodates everyone from Australians to Zanzibaris but it no longer can afford to boast that its strength lies in diversity.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home is arranging a meeting for early July to take a long, cool look at the affairs of the family and to try to modernize some of its institutions to fit today's needs and moods.

Unfortunately for Sir Alec, his hopes of performing a Commonwealth rescue act are imperiled by a brewing storm. Southern Rhodesia, a self-governing colony where 225,000 whites rule 3.7 million Africans, wants statehood now and with it a seat at the London conference table.

The issue may dominate the longer-term, more basic problems of Commonwealth philosophy that have been pending into the July agenda. Thus the conference might follow the 1961 and 1962 pattern—when bread-and-butter business gave way to assaults on South Africa's apartheid or racial separation policies and on Britain's plans for joining the European Common Market.

The Commonwealth is many things to many men and it's easier to say what it is not than what it is.

Pragmatic Asians, for instance, see it as a grouping of nations that exchange trading preference and share a global monetary system.

Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda once offered a loftier view: "South Africa was expelled for reasons other than trade."

India's Jawaharlal Nehru has put it like this: "Membership of the Commonwealth is independence plus." It is a social, political and economic system consisting of many human links. These include the blood bonds of the older, white member-states like Australia, New Zealand, Canada; the shared memories of the British and their Asian partners; the maze of help-each-other agencies; the trading and sterling money network; the English language and the democratic heritage that sometimes is shelved by newcomers, and the celebrity symbol in the figure of Queen Elizabeth. Britain stands at the center of these components.

But things are not what they used to be. The British no longer share their political or military secrets with all their partners—some of whom gaze with fascination toward the Soviet Union or Red China. There is an inner circle of the older members. There is a disdain for fellow members who have chosen one-party systems of rule.

"Two things, though, seem certain: —To make herself heard in the world, Britain still needs the Commonwealth.

—And young members of the family with nations to build, like Kenya and Uganda, and with frontiers to defend, like India and Malaysia, still need Britain.

Peking's 'New Frontier'

By RONNIE WEI
Associated Press Writer

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China has its "new frontier" and is dispatching its own breed of Peace Corpsmen to try to spread good will among restless, suspicious frontiersmen.

The frontier is Sinkiang, the vast, remote and mineral-rich province of northwest China, scene of a private cold war between Moscow and Peking. Sinkiang means "new frontier" or "new territory."

Having swallowed Sinkiang after conquering the mainland in 1949, the Chinese Communists now are trying to digest it.

Intelligence sources and White Russian refugees from Sinkiang agree that assimilation will be difficult.

Ten years ago, 90 per cent of Sinkiang's population was made up of Turkish-speaking Uighurs, a fiercely independent people. A small minority are Mongols, like the Uighurs haters of Chinese rule.

Then there are the Kazakhs, blood brothers of the Kazakhs across the border in the Soviet Union. The Kazakhs and the Uighurs, both Moslem, fled into the Soviet Union in 1962. Others rioted against Chinese officials in Kuldja when Peking tried to check the flow. Many Moslems were killed or wounded.

It was then, say White Russian refugees, that what they call "members of the Chinese Peace Corps" appeared in Sinkiang. They were young, dedicated Communists who replaced unpopular party officials.

These young Communist officials, the refugees say, were extremely courteous and generally went out of their way to help minority people.

Food rations in the border region around Kuldja were increased. One White Russian refugee from Duldja says: "We felt the pressure was off almost immediately after the riots."

Despite all Chinese efforts to pacify the minority people, tribal resentment has been kept alive by what White Russian refugees described as highly inflammatory Soviet propaganda broadcasts from the Russian side of the border. The broadcasts assure the minority people in Sinkiang that some day they will be free from Chinese Communist rule.

Since 1962, there have been no serious outbreaks in Sinkiang, refugees and intelligence reports agree.

Most of the local people in Sinkiang, according to refugee reports, merely feel present living conditions are more tolerable than before. Since their escape routes to the Soviet Union have been cut off, they have to resign themselves to the status quo.

Peking is not content simply to pacify the region.

It has long-term plans to assimilate the minority people with mass migration of Chinese from coastal areas.

The population in Sinkiang is estimated at 7 million, about 2.5 million more than in 1954.

More than 2 million, according to a conservative report, are Chinese from China proper.

nation Geneva conference laid down ground rules for a strictly neutral Laos designed to serve as a buffer between the Communist world—mainly China—and the West.

Under neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, a three-cornered government was set up, giving right-wing, middle-of-the-road and pro-Communist factions an equal say in running things.

The hope was that eventually unification would be achieved, bringing an end to civil strife and the danger of a Red takeover. But the action so far has not gone according to the script.

The Souvanna coalition has been stalemated almost from the start by its own three-pronged system. The civil war flickers on. The Communist threat, if anything, has grown.

The latest coup in Vientiane—an unexpected affair staged three weeks ago by two right-wing generals apparently acting on their own and out of personal ambition—has heightened internal differences, embarrassed the West and set the wheels of crisis turning once more.

No one is quite sure what drove Gen. Kouprasith Abhay—who helped clean the leftists out of Vientiane in 1960—and young police commander Gen. Sio Laophatacut to seek a change in Souvanna's government.

After a neatly executed power grab marked by two hours of sporadic firing that left at least two dead, the rebel chiefs accused Souvanna of failing in his mission and demanded reorganization of the Cabinet. They agreed to keep Souvanna on as premier, but presumably with themselves in key positions—although this was not immediately spelled out.

Whatever their motives and the limited nature of their coup, Kouprasith and Sio managed to upset the delicate balance in Laos at a time when no more upsetting actions are needed.

Another period of negotiations between Communist and non-Communist sides is under way, with little prospect of a solution that will make everyone happy.

A major fear is that, as in the past, the Red Pathet Laos movement—based well out of Vientiane's reach in the strategic Plain des Jarres—will take advantage of the tangled situation to expand its sphere of influence, already covering roughly two-thirds of Laos.

The United States, with its hands full in South Viet Nam, appears more than willing to sidestep any further commitments in this remote corner of Southeast Asia, unless it is pushed to the wall.

The Soviet Union has joined the United States, Britain, France and other worried Geneva powers in an attempt to keep the Souvanna government from sinking under the pressures let loose by the latest coup.

Unless they are successful, this arch to neutralism in Southeast Asia may collapse even before it is completed.

Tiny Bug Picks Up Voices

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — "I could plant a microphone in your living room that would pick up everything said anywhere on the first floor of your house."

The words are spoken in a Maryland drawl by an expert in the increasingly popular art of "bugging" — electronic eavesdropping.

The microphone, says Ralph V. Ward, vice president of Mosler Research Products, Inc., one of the leading manufacturers of such devices, could be hidden on the underside of a sofa, beneath a rug, behind a drawer in a desk or end table, in a lamp or a chandelier or behind a Grandma Moses on the wall.

Or there could be just a tiny pinhole in the wallboard.

"You see this hole?" Ward points to a just visible aperture in a piece of wood paneling like that which lines his office. "That's actually bigger than it has to be. But I made it that big for demonstration purpose."

He turns over the wood. Protruding from the back is a narrow tube placed over the pinhole, and on the end of the tube is a tiny microphone.

Ward opens a plain leather carrying case and displays an arsenal of electronic eavesdropping devices.

"I would like to see the use of these things prohibited — except by police departments and other government agencies," he says. "Invasion of privacy is a problem these days."

Until last year, those were the firm's only customers except for foreign governments approved by the State Department.

Now the company also sells to licensed investigators, but Ward says he would be willing to lose the trade if Congress and state legislatures would restrict the sales.

Ward opens another carrying case and shows an array of equipment capable of sniffing out the snooping devices.

Anyone can buy the anti-eavesdropping devices.

Gambling Is Universal On Island Of Puerto Rico

This is the fourth article in a series on Puerto Rico by Eugene J. Brown, publisher of the Danbury, Conn., News-Times, who recently returned from a trip to that island commonwealth.)

By EUGENE J. BROWN

The seven gambling casinos in San Juan, Puerto Rico, give the island an edge over Miami and Jamaica in the aggressive battle for the tourist dollar, as many tourists like to take a flyer against odds and good sense.

Florida does not have legalized gambling as a tourist attraction. The Jamaican hotel interests are now conducting a determined campaign to permit government supervised gambling. They hope that gambling will give their tourist industry a much needed shot-in-the-arm.

Puerto Rico looks upon gamsides, gambling on an island with a Spanish heritage is just naturally an Old Spanish Custom.

The Puerto Rican Tourist Board does not advertise the gambling facilities with cheerful casualness as does Nevada. However, the wheels, the blackjack table and the dice are there — waiting to pluck and be plucked.

According to Jean-Marc Blouet, the general manager of the El Convento hotel and the fifth generation of its family to be in the hotel business, the casino at the El Convento just about breaks even. The phenomenon is, he states, because his hotel caters to the "family-type" gambling — small stakes in a quiet atmosphere. The casinos at the other six hotels licensed for gambling are an essential tool in the economics of tourism. And believing are reputed to be very profitable.

Govt. Checks Dice, Cards, Table, Money

Mr. Blouet said that gambling at the casinos is rigidly controlled by the government which furnishes inspectors and supervisors to check the nightly play.

For the protection of the tourists, the mechanical gambling devices are checked nightly, along with the decks of cards, the weight and the roll of the dice — even the money that goes in and out is balanced by the inspectors.

I asked if the croupiers were Nevada graduates but I was assured that they were all Puerto Ricans who have graduated and obviously been certified by the special government school for casino personnel.

Obviously anyone who loses money at the casinos in San Juan has the supreme satisfaction of knowing that his loss was diligently supervised.

Gambling is a casual affair in Puerto Rico. It has the Latin-American tolerant attitude toward people who wish to bet.

Lottery Supports

Government Hospital

For the masses of the people, there are 100 cockpits on the island and millions are bet yearly on the skillful meanness of "your chicken against my chicken."

In addition to the government-operated lottery is a wonderful way to get rich just overnight if you happen to hit the weekly payoff. In all parts of the island, licensed lottery-sellers set up their stands on street corners or in news stands.

Like most tourists I, too, was tempted to buy. I figured the odds.

The government's cut of the lottery goes to support the state-run hospitals which charge patients a very low fee—the usual consoling features of a gambling enterprise.

To find out the extent of the touring industry in Puerto Rico I sought out director of tourism, Hector E. Pineiro. He told me that this had been a particularly big year on the island due in part to the early cold weather in Florida. Also, the tourists who used to visit Cuba in the pre-Castro days are now traveling to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The tourists came in thousands during the past year, with 5,000 from Connecticut, 9,500 from Pennsylvania and over 90,000 from New York State. This is five times as many as ten years ago.

Remarking to Mr. Pineiro that the beach area of San Juan looked like Miami, I wondered if the Puerto Ricans wanted to become another Miami. He hastened to assure me that they were guarding against that development by confining the sky-scraping hotels to zoned areas, separated by native residential and business sections which would furnish the needed contrast.

Author Says Skyline

Will Be Miami-Alike

However, I surmise that American-style architecture will prevail and it is only a matter of a few years before the skyline of Miami and San Juan will just naturally blend into what is now designated as Miami-Aztec.

The loser will be the charming Spanish heritage which makes this island so attractive.

The El Convento Hotel where we stayed was snuggled into a hillside of Old San Juan. The hotel had been converted from the first Carmelite convent in the Americas and with the help of the Cultural Institute and the investment of capital by Robert F. Woolworth the owner, it is now one of the authentic show-places of early Spanish architecture.

Many Americans desiring to savor more of the flavor of the country in which they visit will prefer El Convento hotel with its large airy room and patios in the more natural Caribbean style.

As I was leaving Mr. Pineiro's office I said that I heard complaints that the service in some of the hotels was below par. I stated that it was personal opinion that misunderstandings arose between guests and employees because too many in the service trades did not understand basic English.

He agreed that there were complaints, due, he thought, to the fact that the hotel employees lacked the hotel tradition and the "elegance" found in European hotels.

To meet this problem in some respects, the government is conducting hotel training schools for waiters, bell boys, etc. and is now graduating about 50 students every six months.

I found, however, that the supervisory people were very competent and they too have patience with the people under them as did the guests.

Wherever tourists go — be it the Caribbean or the Swiss Alps — how they are treated is the keynote of their satisfaction. I found that I was happy where the desk people knew my name, saved a morning paper for me and could tell me where my wife had gone.

Industrial Arts Fair Winners Announced

EAST STROUDSBURG — Entries from Stroud Union High School students won the lion's share of the prizes awarded at the Industrial Arts Fair, which opened last night at the East Stroudsburg Armory. The fair continues tonight from 7 to 10.

The fair is an annual event sponsored by the Industrial Management Club of Monroe County to give high school students an opportunity to display their talents and exhibits in industrial arts.

Winners of first, second and third prizes plus honorable mention were:

Junior high school leather—William Gaupias, Stroud Union; Nicky Scerbo, Stroud Union; Michael Lee, Stroud Union; and James Kilgo, Stroud Union.

Junior high school plastics—Marshall Smith, Pocono Mountain; Jerry Yando, Pocono Mountain; Ronald Keiper, Pocono Mountain, and Wesley Mager.

Junior high school wood turning—Mark Yinger, Stroud Union; Larry Detrick, Stroud Union; John Pansy, Stroud Union, and Bradley Wise, Pocono Mountain.

Mechanical Drawing—Senior High School mechanical drawing, No. 1—Ray Wallace, Stroud Union; Jack H. Lo-sine, Stroud Union; Lloyd Slinger, Stroud Union, and Ron McMaster, Stroud Union.

Just Between Us —

As a River Rat, I do get involved in some different experiences. Where else, for instance, would I become entangled in a party marking the end of examinations at the college after work?

Obviously, with the songs and games sounding as if they'd all passed with honors, I could scarcely ignore them, and, since they'd borrowed my charcoal grill, they couldn't ignore me. In spite of the fact that they kept confusing me with the Obituaries of the Air, it was sort of refreshing to realize just how young and carefree people can seem.

I was tempted to restart the charcoal grill yesterday morning when the bottom seemed to have dropped out of Spring. It was so cold that the mist on the river was doing a dizzying dance that looked like one river, flowing upstream, imposed on another river, flowing down.

There is another early morning phenomena that is peculiar to the river. The morning sun shines through the new leaves with an unearthly sort of dancing green light, and, at the same time, glints from the water underneath to reflect on the bottom sides of the leaves in a shimmering pattern so that the whole tree seems to be in motion.

The whole thing would have been perfect for one of those dream sequences where one scene dissolves into another, except with the way my teeth were chattering I knew it wasn't a dream. That how come I got to town all huddled up for winter and sort of sweltered all day.

In spite of early morning frost, the news is all geared for summer. The Glen Brook Women Golfers are testing off the new season with a luncheon next Thursday with the Stroudsburg Women's Golf Assn. following suit on Saturday.

High school parties will be

'The Pavilion' Selected As Name For Art Center Bldg.

East Stroudsburg—The name, "The Pavilion" has been selected for the Pocono Art Center Building on Mount Nemo. It was suggested by Mrs. Thomas S. Blair, of 70 Grandview St., East Stroudsburg.

The new building for orchestral, opera, ballet and repertory theater presentations will seat 6,000 persons. In her accompanying letter, Mrs. Blair hailed the music center as "one of the greatest steps ever undertaken to forward the culture of Monroe County, the Poconos, even Pennsylvania as a whole."

Linking The Pavilion with Pythagoras' dream of "Music of the Spheres," Mrs. Blair compared the possibility with where the school he founded where illness and aimless actions were submerged in music, gymnastics, and memorizing the words of historians and poets.

"These great men used their thoughts as well as work and so enriched their souls and filtering down from the college to the pre-school crowd and the PTA's are in their final phases. What really scares me, though, is that Dutch Treat has its program all ready for next October. I don't want to skip over those warm summer nights at the river altogether.

Creative Dance Recital At College Stars Children

East Stroudsburg—Techniques, improvisations and compositions in Creative Dance were illustrated by the children in the class sponsored by East Stroudsburg State College for their parents and friends in the college gymnasium.

Mrs. Charles Wolbers, instructor in the class, prefaced the recital with a statement expressing the philosophy behind it in serving to release and develop the creative power inherent in every child.

All of the classes, beginning, primary and intermediate, joined to demonstrate "Techniques—A Way of Doing," showing the training in the skills required of dancers and serving as an on-stage warm-up.

Improvisations showed the various elements of dance movement. The beginners danced to the folk song, "Jim Along, Joe," emphasizing movement with changes of direction. The primary group did "Gypsy Dance" as a study in levels, using their hand-made tambourines, and also danced the story of "The Butterflies Come" with brightly colored monarch butterflies. The intermediate group presented "Study in Contrasts," using sustained and percussive movement.

The students' ability to use choreographic elements were demonstrated in original dances: Amy Tweedie's "Tending the Clock Shop" with tempo changes; Vivian Wolbers' "Springfield Mountain" with waltz rhythm and rondo form; Judy Farmer's selection from "The Nutcracker Suite" with

Hamilton PTA Closing Year With Many Musical Groups

Selota—The Hamilton Elementary Parent-Teachers Assn. will close its year with a musical program on Monday night at the school with the meeting starting promptly at 7:30 p.m.

Theme of the program will be "Music Communicates."

Arranged by Mrs. Jerome Den-6 nis, Stroud Union district vocal supervisor, the program will feature pupils from the Hamilton School.

The third grade will demonstrate rhythmic patterns and sing, "I Can't Sing Hippopotamus" and "The Scale Song." The fourth grade will sing "Hawaiian Rainbow" and "The Hiking Song." The fifth and sixth grades will demonstrate rhythmic patterns and singing by syllables. They will also sing "Calliope" and "Let There Be Peace."

Ralph Harrison and the Stroud Union District Band will play "American Patrol," "London-derry Air," "Sambolita," "Andy's Theme" and "Laurel March." A trumpet trio will play "Bright Eyes."

In addition the 20-voice chorus, "The Mountaineers" under the direction of Numa Snyder will sing Oscar-winning tunes; and the percussion section of the Stroud High School Band will demonstrate rudiments of drumming under the direction of John Pyle.

Any groups interested in arranging for the Pocono Community Chorus to present a program may call Mrs. Harold E. Treible at Birch Acres.

Rehearsals will be resumed in the Fall.

Parents To Meet Tuesday

Stroudsburg — The parents of children attending the Pocono Playschool Cooperative will hold their final meeting of the year on Tuesday, May 26, at 8 p.m. in the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Proving It Couldn't Be Done Proved She Could Do It

By Roberta Fleming Rousch
Sometimes the things you think you can't do are the things you can do the best!

That was the happy good fortune for youthful writer Dale Carlson who wrote three versions of a children's book just to prove she couldn't — yes, couldn't — do it. Then she ended up writing a series.

Wanted To Write
"I'd always wanted to write books," the author of the now popular "Perkins the Brain" and the mother of a three-year-old boy and a seven-month-old girl told us. "But before I started the 'Perkins' books I had an entirely different kind of writing in mind."

"Actually, I'd been writing since I was in the third grade, even though my books were never published," Dale said. "I wrote a lot in college, too. And after I graduated and married I worked as an editor in a publishing house."

Gave Up Job
"When my first baby was on the way, I gave up my job and planned to do free lance editing at home. But my husband,

Al, who free-lances as a cartoonist, illustrator and portrait painter, suggested I forget about editing and get to my first love — writing.

"At about the same time, an agent-friend of ours heard Al and I laughing over some of the experiences of his childhood. 'As we talked, we began creating a nine-year-old boy, Perkins, as the person to whom these experiences happened.'"

Bit by bit, Perkins developed more and more in the Carlsons' minds. Their agent-friend suggested Dale write a children's book with lots of humor in it, illustrated by Al.

"That's when I announced that that was one kind of writing I couldn't do!" Dale said. Her husband and the agent kept after Dale, though, and finally she said she'd do three things just to show what she couldn't do.

"I'll write humor," she told them. "I'll also write about a nine-year-old boy. And I'll write a book in a length I can't possibly write. Then I'll prove my point."

Dale didn't prove her point! But she did prove herself as a children's writer because, when a publisher saw what she'd done, Dale was in business writing children's books. She turned out three and the fourth Perkins book is now in book with lots of humor in it, illustrated by Al.

Red Sox Edge Angels, 8 To 7
BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski tripled over little Albie Pearson's head in the sixth inning for a run which enabled Boston to edge Los Angeles 8-7 in a loosely played game Thursday.

The blow to deepest center field gave the Red Sox a sweep of the three-game series. The score was tied 7-7 when reliever Willie Smith hit rookie Dalton Jones on the elbow with a pitch. Yastrzemski scored him.

In addition to the total of nine pitchers yielding 18 hits, the ragged contest was punctuated by 13 walks, five errors, two hit batsmen, two wild pitches and a passed ball.

The Angels chased starter Dave Morehead with a five-run fifth inning rally which tied the score 7-7. Lee Thomas tripled to right and Bob Rodgers tagged a nung for a run which enabled Boston to edge Los Angeles 8-7 in a loosely played game Thursday.

Three singles, three walks—two with the bases loaded—and an error were involved before Bob Jefferson, third Red Sox pitcher in the inning, got Felix Torres on a force.

Reaps A Return

Finds His Orioles No Fly-By-Nights

By GORDON BEARD
BALTIMORE (AP) — Persistence has paid off for Lloyd (Speed) Mayhan, minority stockholder of the Baltimore Orioles.

The 71-year-old tavern keeper from Kansas City is finally reaping some return on his investment in a baseball team.

For the past 14 years, Mayhan had been needing the Orioles, and their predecessors, the defunct St. Louis Browns, for some sort of dividend.

His demands apparently were nothing more than a tongue-in-cheek campaign to obtain some kind of memento to hang on the wall of his four-booth, 10-stool establishment.

But the Orioles, plowing back all profits in an effort to produce a pennant winner, have never declared a dividend since the club moved here in 1954.

The Orioles' Advocates, a booster group, heard of Mayhan's cutting correspondence and invited him to attend the three-game series now in progress with the Kansas City Athletics.

David Barrett, Advocates president, described the expenses paid trip as an attempt to "help fill the void created by the absence of said dividends."

Shilling behind the Orioles dug-out, Mayhan and his wife Mabel have seen Baltimore whip the A's 3-2 and 8-3, with another game on tap Thursday night.

One Share Only? Mayhan claims to own just one of the approximately 281,000 Orioles shares, but his wife confided that it is closer to 200 shares.

"Lloyd thinks one share sounds better," she said. Mayhan said the stock, now worth $18 a share, was purchased for $7, "and it should be worth $418 when Baltimore wins the pennant this year."

"The Orioles have been wonderful to me, considering all the kidding that has been going on," Mayhan said.

Allen Homers
Richie Allen belted a two-run homer for Philadelphia in the first, his ninth, off starter Bob Hendley. Mays squared the count with a two-run belt traveling 430 feet off 18-year-old Rick Wise, starting his first major league game.

The Phillies, who led the league by eight percentage points going into the game, scored twice more in the third on four hits. Tony Gonzalez drove in one run with a sacrifice fly and Bobby Wine singled in the other.

Hero of Wednesday's 7-2 victory when his great fielding play turned the tide, Wine was an inning error that allowed one run to score and kept a San Francisco rally alive. Jose Pagan drove in the second run with a bloop single off reliever Ed Roebuck.

Perry's Mistake
Perry, an unheralded Los Angeles player, made the mistake of trying to match eighth-seeded Pietrangeli at the backcourt game and went down 6-2, 6-0, 7-5.

Mike Richey, No. 3 in the U.S. rankings, was off to a shaky start against Unni Smith of Norway but steadied to win 6-2, 6-0. Mrs. Susman defeated Johanne Venturino of France 6-4.

The other U.S. winner was Carole Prosen of Orlando, Fla., who beat Maylis Burel of France 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. The losers were eighth-seeded Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla., Tony Fritz of Harrisburg, Pa., Cathy and Linda Lou Crosby of Arcadia, Calif., and Marilyn Stock of Miami.

MIFFLINTOWN — Gene Mardness hurled a six-hit shutout and received 13-hit support as Elizabethtown slammed East Stroudsburg State College, 8-0, yesterday in the opening of the NAIA baseball tournament.

The Warriors of Dr. George Ockershausen, who had finished the season with an overall 9-5 record, had been given 24-hour notice of their tourney acceptance.

Elizabethtown jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Ray Stern's single. Tony McLaughlin's double and a sacrifice fly.

A six-run seventh sealed the verdict for the winners. Mardness was safe on an error and was sacrificed to second. Singles by Gary Messinger and Al Hershey scored one run and Ray Stern was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

McLaughlin singled in two runs and Bob Doll scored another pair with a single. Dave Myers also stroked an RBI single to end the scoring in the round.

Four of Elizabethtown's hits went to extra bases while the six ESSC safeties were all singles. Jim Reynolds collected two of the Warrior hits.

Mardness struck out 14 batters while issuing but three walks. Bob Butterworth, who went the route for ESSC, fanned six and walked four.

LEIGHTON — The Bears of Pleasant Valley traveled to Leighton yesterday and were held to five hits by Craig Hoffer as he led his Leighton teammates to a 4-0 victory.

The loss put Arthur Smith's charges at 3-5-1 for the season. Leighton wrapped it up in the bottom of the first when they put together two doubles and a single good for two runs. Bob Dorshimer, Bear left fielder, was the day's only two-time hitter.

The Bears end their baseball season Tuesday with a home encounter with Pocmon Mountain in a Pocmon League tussle.

NBC Sports 'Hopeful' For Pro 'Star' Contest

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Carl Lindemann Jr., vice president in charge of sports for National Broadcasting Co., said Thursday he's still hopeful an all-star game can be arranged between the rival National and American football leagues.

Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, flatly rejected NBC's offer to donate $500,000 to the Kennedy Memorial Library in exchange for television rights for an AFL-NFL, all-star game next January.

"Pete's telegram to me didn't make it clear whether he was rejecting the offer, or whether the NFL owners had voted it down," Lindemann said shortly after his arrival to attend an AFL spring meeting in Kansas City.

"Even if the NFL owners have voted, I'm still hopeful they might reconsider. I think it's a terrific idea."

Joe Foss, AFL commissioner, said the NFL offer came as a surprise to him. Foss said he called a special meeting of AFL owners and they gave the proposal unanimous approval.

The NFL has already arranged for receipts from a Detroit-Philadelphia exhibition game to be contributed to the Kennedy Library.

Planned Proposal
Lindemann said the all-star proposal was in the works at NBC before this exhibition proposal was announced.

"The Kennedy Library could realize close to $1 million from this game with plenty left for the players," Lindemann said. "The NFL should reconsider."

The AFL didn't have time because of the NBC proposal to hear to a proposal by Dave Dixon of New Orleans for a three-game AFL title playoff with the second—and third game if needed—in New Orleans.

Foss said the owners reviewed the AFL disaster plan and listened to a proposal by Lamar Hunt, Kansas City owner, for a 40-man squad that would include a six-man development squad under special contract.

NFL Rejects All-Star Game

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League turned thumbs down on a bid to play an all-star game with the American Football League and then moved Thursday to meet its own players halfway on their request for more money during the training season.

However, the league turned down a bid by the players for representation on the pension plan committee.

Those were the moves made as the owners of the veteran 14-team league wound up their annual spring meeting here.

Rejected By Rozelle
Commissioner Pete Rozelle rejected the bid for an all-star game next January against a team picked from the eight teams of the rival AFL, which begins its fifth season this fall.

The offer had come from an official of the National Broadcasting Co. who said the network would donate $500,000 to the Kennedy Library fund for exclusive television rights to such a game.

Rozelle said the league "has no interest in your publicized proposal."

The NFL chief said the league had made plans several weeks ago that the Philadelphia-Detroit exhibition game Aug. 23 at Philadelphia would benefit the Kennedy fund.

"Terrific Idea"
AFL Commissioner Joe Foss jumped at the bid, unsurprisingly. The younger league has repeatedly challenged the NFL to a game.

"I think it's a terrific idea," Foss said, in a telegram to NBC. The AFL owners voted to accept.

Rozelle said he had offered a solution to the exhibition game money question, and all the clubs had indicated they would go along with it. The commissioner suggested the players get $6 a day for incidental expenses during the nine-week training campaign. This would cover all players as long as they remained with the club. It would come to $378 for each individual during the training period.

The players had asked for a raise from $50 to $100 a game for exhibition contests. Since most teams play five, it meant an increase from $250 to $500. Under the new $6 a day scale there will be no cash payment.

Bangor Trackmen Crush PM Cards

BANGOR — Bill Yeager and Jim Constable were double winners in Bangor High's track finale which paced the host Staters to an 84½-19½ win over Pocmon Mountain yesterday. Yeager triumphed in the 100-yard dash and the broad jump, while Constable won the high jump and javelin events.

Bangor swept five events — the 440, discus, pole vault, high jump and broad jump, while also finishing first in the mile relay.

Phillies Can Play In Park

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The landlord of the Philadelphia Phillies, with a lease extending only to 1967, says the National League club can go on playing baseball at Connie Mack Stadium until a new park is built in the city.

Milton Schwartz, a New York real estate man who bought the park in 1961 for $600,000 and he plans to build apartments and stores on the site, said the Phillies are "good tenants and they pay their rent."

Last week officials of the club set July 1 for a commitment on a new stadium, now scheduled to be constructed at 30th and Arch Streets, over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

too much, too good, too rich, too highly processed.
The slim young bridegroom begins to expand, another victim of creeping obesity.

At middle age the overweight man—depending on the amount of his blubber—is likely to be two to three times more susceptible to coronary heart disease than his neighbor of normal weight.

Overweight has become a national disease.
Each year we spend millions of dollars, and work up anxiety and go in for frenzied diets, determination, seizing upon crash diets, special reducing diets and highly-touted drug nostrums—and still keep yearning for some simple, presto formula to slim down and trim off the extra pounds.

But you really can lose weight and keep it down, by acting upon a few fundamental physiological laws governing the reasons why most of us gain weight.

The first immutable law is that calories absolutely DO count. All diets that shrink off pounds are based upon a deficit of calories, no matter how they are advertised.

Our new young husband—let's call him George Livewell—illustrates the way many men, possibly a majority, begin gaining weight, and thus veering closer toward a premature heart attack.

George began consuming tastier and more food—and more calories, and it makes no difference if the calories come from proteins, sugars, starches or fats. Any excess over expenditure is banked by the body.

He likely also gave up the sports or exercise habits of his bachelor days, or with promotions or changes in his job began working less hard physically. Spending fewer calories, he needed fewer to hold his former weight.

Eat Less Each Year
The same thing happens to the housewife who later spends less time running after her children, or doing her own housework, if she keeps consuming the same amount of food.

A single pound of fat represents 3,500 "banked" calories. The dismaying thing is we fatten our bank account little by little.

There's another immutable fact about calories: With each year after age 25, our bodies need about 10 fewer calories per day. Thus, at age 40 you need 100 fewer per day than at age 30; the excess is deposited in the calorie fat bank.

A George Livewell taking in 100 more calories a day than he needs—including costs of his physical activity or exercise—in 35 days can gain a pound, or 10 pounds in a year!

If he decides to lose 10 or 20 pounds in a few weeks time, he starts out in trouble. He expects too much, too soon.

Let's assume he's a big-framed fellow, eating 3,000 calories a day, and liking it all, but it's 200 too much. By cutting down to 2,800, he would stop gaining MORE weight.

By cutting to 2,600—400 fewer calories daily—he could lose 20 pounds over a year's time (the way he gained it) at no great sacrifice or self-pity, no over-dramatic change of habits.

To maintain each present pound of weight—if you are moderately active—requires about 15 calories per day.

To LOSE weight calls for reducing that amount, or increasing activity to spend more calories, or a combination.

By cutting calories by 700 to 800 a day and eating about 1,400 to 1,500—not a starvation level—you can lose 1½ pounds a week. In 10 weeks, you can drop 15 pounds. Then you can go back to the 2,250 a day—remembering to make it 2,240 after your next birthday.

Fashion your diet in the manner described in the preceding chapter. And don't think in terms of "going on a diet." That implies you can quit when you are "cured" just as you can stop taking medicine when an illness passes.

The secret is to condition yourself to new and still pleasurable ways.

Try Exercise Too

And you can give yourself an assist in losing weight, without going hungry, by spending more calories. A brisk 15-minute daily walk, over and above your present activity, will spend an extra 75 calories.

You can use it all for withdrawals from your fat—or calorie—account, and lose a pound in 47 days (47x75 equals 3,525 calories) or almost eight pounds in a year. Or you can apply the extra spending to being able to eat a bit more while maintaining your present normal weight.

The vigorous walk costs about five calories per minute. Sitting and watching TV, George Livewell spends only about 1½ a minute. In two hours, he spends 150 calories—easily offset, or more, by his snack or drink.

With push-button, sedentary living, we are most of us spending far fewer calories in daily activities than before.

Working at a desk a man today may spend only 1.6 calories per minute, compared with four to six by his wife while she is actually doing housework.

The housewife used to spend 240 calories scrubbing clothes, and 50 more putting them out on the clothesline. But today it costs her only about 15 calories to dump those clothes in the washing machine and dryer.

The factory worker, with machine aid, does his job on the average with a spending of about two calories per minute. The coal miner in the mechanized pits spends about four.

A farmer operating a tractor with a standard steering wheel burned 157 calories per hour. With power steering, his spending fell to 126 per hour, a saving of 250 calories during eight hours' work. And that's equivalent to five slices of bread.

By and large, we have won leisure and freedom from drudgery, and we treasure these boons. But we are no longer obliged to use our muscles.

A rising cost is counted in creeping fat and flabbiness, a scourge of aching backs, and worse, a pretty good chance we are rusting our arteries.

Cy Barrett Says

Courage To Be Boss

By Cy Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY: You have helped so many, perhaps you can aid me, a cleaning woman. I work for $1.25 an hour for a janitor service. They don't give me enough time to do a good job cleaning offices and buildings but want everything done perfectly anyway. People at the places I clean are always telling me how pleased they are with my work, but I always work from 10 to 11 hours extra per day without pay.

I do whatever it takes to do the job well, but it doesn't help my paycheck. So I have almost decided to get myself a company name and a woman helper and go into this business myself. What do you think of the idea, Cy?

ANXIOUS FLORENCE

DEAR FLORENCE:

Being one's boss for any length of time takes visceral courage. How much have you got? Before starting a very small venture from scratch, consider the endless hours, the record keeping, the sales, and selling efforts required to get business on the books. Then, demonstrate fortitude by asking your employer for a fair wage. If granted, you will have time to think more objectively about starting your one ring show. If refused, you probably won't have to bother about making a decision.

DEAR CY:

You must be going out of your blasted head, discussing temporary help. I work at a concern where the permanent office force was being laid off.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Friday, May 22, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A notable day for presenting new ideas; also old ones carefully treated to get the most good still left in them. YOUR talents should shine now.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Excellent Venus aspect. Especially favored: reliable matters, home and family concerns, romance. Display your ingenuity.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Day is mostly up to you — whether you have much to accomplish or have less to do and can truly "take it easy." Go over affairs carefully, then decide how to proceed.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — "Truth crushed to earth will rise again," always does—hide you, then, as you act wisely, compass, slowly, toward all. A good day for good deeds.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Adversity is not without some comfort, and light you may be compared in certain areas, you can gain knowledge and wisdom from this. Be calm; gains are in the offing.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Show your pace if you should, quicken it where reasonable. You may have to cope with some one quite unexpected; don't show displeasure, if it may help the total goal.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — New advances and dangers that have been under way for some time. Stand firm on principle.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Readiness to adapt in duties and those who may be do not always, please but MUST be handled with the best of your success. Marshal your true forces.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — You may trip over little matters if not watched. Have patience and the "congruous" or seeming inconsistency of things will clear. Manage carefully.

December 24 to January 23 (Capricorn) — A "tutor" made day for you and your talents. You may find some "rich" situations, and anxious persons may vex, but if you remain serene, you can handle all well.

January 24 to February 23 (Aquarius) — This day is a "tutor" for those of you who have the right slant and got after essentials. Be promptly, helpfully, enthusiastic — all that most matters now.

February 24 to March 23 (Pisces) — If you are on the half, ever to achieve in the best ways available, and to MAKE opportunities where it is lacking, you will open new doors to delightful gains.

YOU JOHN TRILBY: seldom can anything keep you down for long; you have the wonderful ability to rise above opposition and face adversity with equanimity. Don't begin a project before you find out whether it is worthwhile. In other words, don't act, THEN think; your abilities are too fine to be wasted. Your plans are usually sound in theory, and you do not hesitate to back them, making your point strongly. Many writers, singers and painters are listed among the famous. Birthdate of: Richard Wagner, composer.

In wholesale numbers while the firms were being extended and renewed for weeks ahead. This same company laid off one of its own secretaries and later rehired her as temporary help. Explain that — if you can!

VOLSTEAD

DEAR VOLSTEAD:

Temporary help services are never going to replace the need for permanent (or direct) employees. This sounds like a case of a company retrenching, but fighting to stay in business on a reduced basis. I laid my thoughts on the line. Why must a straight-from-the-shoulder approach these days be regarded as mental ravings?

CY

DEAR CY:

I am thinking of running a classified ad for help in a unique business venture which might be classed more as adventure. To some it might seem a bit shady, although things would work out for the all-around best. Would the newspaper run my ad?

BAGBY

DEAR BAGBY:

U.S. newspapers value confidential bulk through meritorious want ads. They conduct a conscientious, concerted effort to screen out deceptive copy. A newspaper in Birmingham, England, didn't exercise this caution and accepted the following want ad from a Mr. Hawkins:

"AN OPPORTUNITY to earn 250 pounds in a few minutes. A man of average intelligence with a tearaway disposition willing to take chances, wanted for an out of the ordinary job which can be performed only once."

According to a bulletin of the (American) Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, "Albert Hawkins had become tired of his wife. Edna. So, according to prosecutor David E. Morgan, he advertised for a murderer." Barry Breeze, who answered the ad, notified police he was asked to work as an assassin. ANCAM is on to the likes of you and Al Hawkins.

Besides, you can seldom trust a man with a "tearaway disposition."

CY

If your personal business depends on weather and weather conditions, the booklet, "How to Forecast the Weather" can be plenty valuable. To get your copy, send 20c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Cy Barrett, c/o this newspaper.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Could Named To Committee On Mental Health Program

HARRISBURG — Secretary of Welfare, Arlin M. Adams, announced yesterday the appointment of James Gould, Monroe County Mental Health Association, to Regional Committee VI of the Comprehensive Mental Health - Mental Retardation Planning Program.

Drug Firm's Credit Union Names Aides

SWIFTWATER — Philip Storer has been named president of the recently formed National Drug ("Swiftwater Employees") Federal Credit Union Wednesday.

The group was welcomed into the Pennsylvania Credit Union League by Edwin Mailanger of the state organization at a meeting in which George Frantz was selected first vice-president; Melvin Firk, second vice-president; Raymond Allegar, treasurer; and Don Marshall, secretary, clerk.

The organization, chartered by the U.S. Bureau of the Federal Credit Unions, is made up of employees and others connected with the National Drug Co. of Swiftwater. Its purpose is to provide thrift promotion and a source of credit among its members.

Child Care Denies Charges

HARRISBURG (AP) — The former executive director of the Bureau of Child Care, a private social agency in Philadelphia, denied Commonwealth allegations this week that the organization conducts a sub-standard operation.

Mrs. Ada B. Harris appeared before a special three-member committee recruited to gather testimony on the operation of the bureau.

The State Department of Public Welfare has recommended that the bureau be closed.

Mrs. Harris, who now serves as a bureau consultant, contended at Wednesday's hearing that the agency has complied with state regulations governing the operation of such organizations.

She said that a number of administrative improvements were made following state surveys which prompted the charge of sub-standard procedures.

of the Governor's Council for Human Services.

The committee of lay and professional citizens will undertake a survey of mental health needs and resources in the six counties of Berks, Carbon, Lehigh, Monroe, Northampton and Schuylkill for the mentally ill and retarded.

The study is being undertaken with the aid of a $400,000 two-year grant from the Federal Government and a $30,000 allocation in Federal funds to determine present services and gaps in the field of mental retardation.

The Comprehensive Mental Health - Mental Retardation Plan Regional Office is located at the State Armory, 15th and Allen Streets, Allentown and is staffed by David Miller, ACSW, Regional Planning Coordinator.

Ronson Sees Hike In Sales

NEWARK, N.J. — The Ronson Corporation anticipates sales of close to $67,000,000 in 1964, or more than six per cent above last year's sales of $62,853,177, Louis V. Ronson II, president, told Ronson shareholders at the company's annual meeting yesterday.

Based on this forecast, he said, the percentage increase in profits should be at least equal to that of sales.

Ronson operates a plant at Delaware Water Gap.

Speaking at the Military Park Hotel, Ronson reported that sales for the first half of 1964 were expected to be about $27,000,000, or about 6 per cent above sales of $25,650,000 for the same period last year. He said the percentage of profits for the first half were expected to rise at least as much as the percentage rise in first half sales.

Aronson also stated that second quarter sales should be about equal to the sales of $13,592,000 reported for the April - June period of 1963. However, he said, profits could be slightly above last year's second quarter.

Aronson said that Ronson plans to introduce more new products during the 18-month period beginning with the second half of 1964 and extending through 1965 than in any similar period in the company's history.

Aronson announced that in June, Ronson would introduce two new electric kitchen appliances — a multi-speed blender of unusual design and an electric carving and slicing knife.

KRESGE WINS — Harold B. Kresge, center, is congratulated after election Wednesday night as GOP county chairman by Nancy Shukaitis, secretary, and Olaf Pedersen, treasurer of the county committee.

Relative Of Local Woman Development Director

NEW YORK — Thomas S. Kalden has been named business development director of Carter, Berlind and Weill, investment bankers and members of the New York Stock Exchange recently.

Kalden is the grandnephew of Mrs. George Watson of Stroudsburg and Mrs. John Lane of Port Jervis. Also, his mother is the former Margaret Pitney of Milford.

He is the grandson of the late Thomas Pitney and Margaret Drake Pitney of Milford and the great-grandson of the late Stephen Drake and Martha Faulds Drake of Milford and Dingman's Ferry.

As business development director, Kalden will work with institutional accounts and with companies with which the company maintains a financial advisory relationship.

A graduate of Hofstra College, Kalden received a master's degree from the institution and did additional graduate work at Yale University.

World War I veterans have some six thousand term and 266 thousand converted GI life insurance policies in force with a total face value of more than $1 billion, the Veterans Administration reports.

More than 7,000 medical research projects are being conducted in facilities of the Veterans Administration by some 3,200 professional personnel with more than 1,100 technical and administrative assistants.

Wind Gap Fire Company Receives New Ambulance

WIND GAP — Wind Gap Fire Co. Wednesday night took ownership of a new ambulance.

It was delivered by a representative of Gordon's Coach and Ambulance Sales Co. The fire company paid $10,850 for the new vehicle. The old ambulance was taken in on a trade-in.

"There are 110 new members in the community now provided with ambulance service. This brings the total membership to 1,554," Paul Weaver, chairman of the ambulance committee said.

"Last month we made 18 runs bringing the total runs to 3,317 this year," he concluded.
